BEGIN RIGHT.

Many a race has been lost because the start was poor. When you start don't buy the range first and find out about it afterward; but "get right on to the job" from the start. Compare carefully all the ranges in reach, find out why each dealer claims his range best—you'll

BUY A CRAWFORD

For no one can tell you where or why his range is different from any except the man who sells the Crawford. He can show you things that no other stove has—things that make the Crawford work quicker, surer and with a third less fuel than any other stove would use. The improvements are there, you can see them, put your finger on them. It isn't simply that we say it's best, we can show you why. Come and see.

EARLY AGREEMENT MAY BE EFFECTED.

Not Sure Germany Will Accept France's Proposals.

Confidence Felt Because of the Extent of Compensations Made.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The French foreign office, it is understood, has not received any sure indication that Germany will accept the French proposals for a settlement of the Moroccan question, yet a measure of confidence is felt in an early agreement because of the extent of the compensations which are to be offered by France. Since these are Central African areas, it is not supposed Germany would proceed to extreme lengths over a few thousand square miles, more or less.

The difficulty in an early settlement, it is believed at the foreign offices, lies in the special commercial and mining guarantees, which Germany may seek in Morocco, as nothing can be given Germany in Morocco which Great Britain does not possess. Besides, anything like special privileges would afford endless occasions for the re-opening of the controversy on questions of interpretation. The French and British governments had the fullest mutual agreement upon every phase of the Franco-German dispute.

The nervousness of the upper business world over the unsettled Franco-German negotiations, relative to Morocco, was reflected today on the Bourse. Transactions were limited; nearly the whole list being weak. French 3 per cent rentes, however, held firm.

Much irritation has been caused in official and public circles here by the action of the Spanish government in choosing the present time to occupy Saint Crox La Mineure on the Moroccan coast, 58 miles south of Agadir, under the terms of the treaty of 1860 with Morocco. The Madrid government sent a force of 500 soldiers from the garrison at Las Palmas, Canary islands, to occupy the Moroccan seaport.

TWO WOMEN BADLY BURNED.

Fuse in Providence Car Blows Out Injuring Nine or Ten Others.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 1.—Two women were badly burned and nine or ten others severely injured at noon today, when a fuse blew out in the controller board of a street car. Miss Annie F. Brown and Maud Johnson, colored, were sitting on the front seat and came in contact with the flames when they started to leave the car. The others were hurt jumping from the car before it had been brought to a stop.

DOUBLE PROGRAM PLANNED.

All Events of the Harvard-Boston Aeroplane Meet to be Held.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Notwithstanding the heavens have deluged the aviation field at Squantum for three days past, the management of the Harvard-Boston aeroplane met was early on the field today, confident that conditions would be sufficiently improved to permit of double programs each day until all the events of the meet had been contested, which it was believed would be accomplished by next Wednesday night.

The dozen or more aviators have shown the finest consideration for the management of the met and there has been no complaint and no desertion notwithstanding that the delay has caused a considerable extra expense upon the fliers themselves and interfered with future contracts.

The event of note scheduled for today is the flight to Boston light and return, the distance being covered twice and making 32 miles, for which prizes aggregating $2,500 are offered. Claude Grahame-White is considered the favorite in the race, with his 70 horse-power Nieuport. Stone in a 100 horse-power Queen monoplane and one or two of the Bleriots are expected to give the Englishman a hard go.

Lincoln Beachey is due to come out for some real work in altitude climbing, if the sky proves clear, the daring Curtiss flier having promised his friends to "touch the top" and make a mark which will stand through the remainder of the year.

A LONG LIST OF DEPOSITORS.

Early Arrivals at Opening of Postal Savings Bank, Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The postal savings bank in Brooklyn was opened today with a line of depositors who had been standing for hours. The first man to open an account had taken his station outside the window at 3 o'clock this morning and waited for six and one half hours.

MEN IN CUSTODY.

El Paso Railroad Ticket Offices Swindled by Fort Bliss Soldiers.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 1.—Railroad ticket offices in this city were swindled out of nearly $2,000 yesterday, by members of the Twenty-third infantry stationed at Fort Bliss. The men are in custody. According to the military authorities Privates Paul C. Hilt, Clarence E. Tobias and Walter H. Creel forged the names of the authorities to final discharge and travel papers of fictitious soldiers, cashed them at the railway ticket offices in the purchase of three tickets, and pocketed the change. Over $100 was recovered.

SUAREZ BACKERS TO FIGHT HARD.

Dominguez Strong Candidate for Vice Presidency.

Convention in Mexico City to Vote for Officer Today.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 1.—When the backers of the candidacy of Jose Pino Suarez for the vice presidency of Mexico entered the progressive convention this morning, their faces did not betray the same confidence which has characterized them until now. The vigorous attack made upon the candidacy of the Yucatan last night has lowered his stock considerably and those claiming to have inside knowledge of the temper of the delegates are inclined to believe that he will have difficulty in defeating Alfredo Robles Dominguez. A few timorous ones also are beginning to fear Dr. Francisco Vasquez Gomez, notwithstanding the fact that he is the chief of the anti-reelectionists, which party rejected the candidacy of Madero and nominated Emilio Vasquez Gomez for the presidency.

It is expected that the convention will vote on the vice presidency candidate today, and few are venturing guesses on the successful one. Sanchez Ascona, personally a partisan of Pino Suarez, is credited this morning by many political observers with having acted cleverly last night in availing himself of his right as chairman, arbitrarily to adjourn the convention. Since then the leaders of the four political factions have worked hard and bloodshed yesterday told the story of their overnight efforts.

The attacks of the opposition upon the methods employed by the backers of Suarez have had a noticeable effect. Although they were unable to prove that the central committee had overstepped the bounds of political ethics in supporting that candidate, charges to that effect have resulted in open suspicion on the part of many of the delegates whose votes Suarez backers had considered safe.

FLEET BEGINS WAR GAME.

No Shot to be Aimed More Than Five Miles in Long-Range Firing.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 1.—With the wind blowing 18 miles an hour from the northwest and a heavy sea on, the fleet under Admiral Hugo Osterhaus today began its September war games on the Southern drill grounds off the Virginia capes. The aim had been to have these manoeuvres take place during severe weather as well as under favorable conditions, and the start was made this morning with atmospheric and other conditions, such as made the long-range firing calculated develop the very best skill on board the fleet. It is planned that in the long-range firing no shot will be aimed at a distance of more than five miles, with maximum range firing more than nine miles.

DECLINE IN AUGUST COTTON REPORT.

Hot Weather Chief Factor of Deterioration in Nearly All the States.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—A total production of 12,912,200 bales of cotton as the final yield this year is indicated by the Department of Agriculture's official report on the condition of the growing crop August 25, which the reporting board from crop reports from its correspondents and agents throughout the cotton belt estimated today at 73.2 per cent of a normal. This estimate, based on the ratio of the average yield of the past ten years to the average condition of the crop August 25 for the past ten years, would mean a final yield of 181.65 pounds per acre on the planted area of approximately 34,000,000 acres, allowing for an abandoned acreage of 1,000,000, and provided the crop does not decline or improve from the date the condition was estimated to time of picking.

These estimates of production, while unofficial, were reckoned by the official method adopted by the Department of Agriculture and used by the crop reporting board in its monthly estimates of the final yield of the important cereal crops of the country.

Unofficial advices from the cotton belt indicate that the most important decline in the crop was due to severe droughts, hot winds and worms. Reports indicate that heavy shedding caused by hot weather was the chief factor of deterioration in practically all states except Louisiana and Mississippi, where there was too much rain. In all other states heat and drought greatly damaged cotton during the month, especially in Texas and Oklahoma. Since the date on which the condition was taken August 25, there have been general rains, which greatly relieved conditions and considerable improvement is looked for when the October report is issued.

CONDITION OF COTTON CROP.

A Drop in the Percentage Due to the Weather and the Boll Worms.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 1.—A drop of 23.3 per cent in the condition of the cotton crop, as the result of a week of intensely hot and dry weather and the activity of the boll worms, is shown by the monthly crop bulletin of the state board of agriculture. The cotton condition is given as 63.7 per cent compared with 87 per cent a month ago, and the estimated production at .3 of a bale per acre. Officials of the board estimate that the total cotton crop of the state this year will not exceed 800,000 bales. A month ago the prospect was for more than 1,000,000 bales.

TO VISIT ISLESBORO, ME.

President and Mrs. Taft to Leave on Mayflower for Week-End Trip.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 1.—Unless the weather man turns on the rain again, President and Mrs. Taft will sail from Beverly tonight on the Mayflower for Islesboro, Maine. They will spend Saturday and Sunday in Islesboro, at the home of Mrs. Thomas McLaughlin, a sister of Mrs. Taft, and expect to reach Beverly on the return trip Monday morning.

The President today had his first good look at the sun since he left Rochester, N. Y., and the Grand Army of the Republic encampment August 23. Ever since he arrived in Beverly the rain has been coming in showers and in torrents. Although it did not stop the Presidential golf games it made them uncomfortable, and today for the first time the President motored over to the Myopia links with the prospect of real enjoyment.

TAFT BARS FIGHTING.

Contests Between Birds or Animals in the Canal Zone Prohibited.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Cock fights, dog fights and bull fights will soon disappear from the Panama canal zone. President Taft has issued an executive order, effective Labor day, placing all contests between birds or animals of any kind on the zone in the same prohibited class as prize fighting between men under pain of fine or imprisonment.

LUMBER TRUST ENJOINED.

Blacklisting of Retail Competitors Charge Against Detroit Combine.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 31.—A bill was filed in the United States circuit court here this afternoon to enjoin the Michigan Retail Lumber Dealers' Association from continuing an alleged unlawful conspiracy to restrain commerce and trade in lumber and lumber products in many states. The Lumber Secretaries' Bureau of Information of Chicago and the Scout Publishing Company of Detroit are also named as defendants in the bill.

It is charged that members of the Retail Association have agreed among themselves that if any manufacturer or jobber ships to a consumer in competition with the retailers the latter immediately should impose a fine on the shipper. If the shipper refused to pay the penalty he was "black-listed."

The Scout Publishing Company, publishers of a lumber trade magazine, is charged with having aided in carrying out the combination by publishing the names of offending shippers.

The Lumber Secretaries' Bureau of Information, it is alleged, receives complaints from the Retailers' Association concerning shippers dealing with competing consumers and gives notice thereof to all the several lumber dealers' associations throughout the United States, all of which is charged as a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

LA FOLLETTE NON-COMMITTAL.

Says "Most Anybody Would Like to be President."

WILLIAMS GROVE, Pa., Aug. 31.—Senator Robert La Follette of Wisconsin, speaker of the day at the mass meeting held at this place under the auspices of the State Grange today, only casually mentioned the Presidency and did not discuss reciprocity and other national issues.

In telling of battles for his principles in his home state, he said he could have been governor before he was elected if he had desired the place for the honor alone. "But," said he "what is it to be governor, or President even, for the honor of it alone?"

After a pause he continued: "As to the Presidency, I will say only this: Most anybdy would like to be President. Most anybody who has a good, broad conception of the conditions that exist in this country would like to be President if he could work things out and bring the government back to the people of the United States.

"I would rather have the little part I'm going to have as one of the men who help to make that movement the fundamental thing in the life of the American people. I would rather have that and the place it will give me in history than to have the place some men who have been resident will have in the history of this republic."

The speaker said that the people need not fear the initiative, referendum or recall. "They need fear no ultra or radical legislation," said he, "because you can't enlist a majority of 90,000,000 of people in anything unless it is right. The American people are the most conservative on earth."

FIGHTING RANGE WIDENED.

Experimental Firing at the San Marcos Convinces Officers of Long-Distance Efficiency.

Ordnance officers of the Navy Department say that as a result of the experimental firing of battleship Delaware at the San Marcos in Chesapeake bay it has been demonstrated that open firing in war times may be commenced at a range of from 15,000 to 16,000 yards distant from the enemy. They say the number of hits at this distance by the Delaware was not as great as at a closer range, but in time of battle one hit at a distance of eight or nine miles before the enemy could easily reply, would be very effective.

The firing at the San Marcos has ceased and the Atlantic fleet will begin its competitive firing today. Only two ships will fire competitively each day, and this will extend the practice from 12 to 15 days. The experimental and night firing will take place in the afternoon and evenings. The firing has been extended over a period of two weeks. The department hopes that the ships will encounter heavy weather and fog. One condition laid down for this year's competitive firing is that no shell shall be discharged at a range of less than 9,000 yars.

Much has been done in the way of firing torpedoes in the open sea from battleship destroyers and submarines and the results obtained are considered good.

A DANGEROUS COUNTERFEITER CAUGHT.

A wavering red line, straggling across a map of the city of Memphis on the wall of Secret Service headquarters in Washington, records the story of a five years' hunt for a counterfeiter of silver dollars, which has reached its climax in Memphis with the arrest of John G. Payne, a negro, and his wife.

For more than five years the dollars which Payne is charged with making have been passing through the banks in Memphis and some have reached the sub-treasuries. They were considered among the most dangerous counterfeits with which the government has had to deal. All the resources of the Secret Service failed to find a clew to the counterfeiters.

Three months ago W. H. Moran, assistant chief of the Secret Service, sent "Bill" Nye, one of his best men, to Memphis. A few weeks later, at a negro emancipation celebration at Paducah, Nye obtained information which led to the identification of Payne as the man alleged to have passed the dangerous coins. Then Nye began picking a trail through the streets of Memphis to Payne's house. Every day Moran, in Washington, with a pen and red ink, recorded the progress of the search. till Moran sent a despatch to Memphis, and a few hours later Nye reported the arrest of Payne and his wife and a capture of several counterfeit coins, the outfit for making them and the genuine dollars from which the molds were made. The arrests were made at an isolated farmhouse in the suburbs of Memphis.

AN ENEMY OF THE GYPSY MOTH.

A recent inspection by forestry officials in and about the Lynn woods has resulted in the discovery that the employment of the wilt disease in the work of gypsy moth extermination has more than theory to justify it. Wherever the experiment has been made the past year its effect has been definite and good. It is found that in sections where the disease has been planted the number of nests has very appreciably diminished, while in adjacent territory where spraying has been depended upon, they are as abundant as ever.

WORK OBSERVED BEGOR.

the street where the bicycle had been crushed and threw them over the fence into the Mall. They had been left there by two fakirs who had gone on the New York boat. The boy had worn the trousers of his damaged suit since; the coat seems to be useless except for knocking around at dirty work; the hat was broken. The repairs to the bicycle cost $5. He had used liniment on the boy's arm since and it is just about coming around; Dr. Sweet said it would take some time. The boy did not work, but had been incapacitated from going out rowing and doing various things which he had done. He thought $20 to $25 would probably cover the cost of everything but the suffering indured. Some one asked how much the suit the boy had on cost and Mr. Lath said he did not know. Mayor Boyle suggested that what he was interested in was the cost of the one to replace it.

Mr. Barker was coming out of the Hall & Lyon store as the boy came down Touro street. He heard the crash, looked up and saw the boy and bicycle in the air. Went to his aid, as did Officer Gregory. Saw the two blocks; they looked like granite blocks. They must have caused the fall, though he could not swear they did. The boy was a mess with mud and oil when he picked himself up and was apparently considerably hurt.

The board took the case under consideration.

WHAT YOUNG AMERICA IS DOING IN BOAT BUILDING.

In the building of motor boats, for instance, the youngsters of this country have earned recognition within the brief period of a decade. Motor boat construction in the United States has been known as a profitable enterprise for nearly 20 years. While professional boat builders have been devoting much time anad attention to the new form of craft, many boys, too, have started in to build the boat which now figures conspicuously in American sports. Naval architects and boat builders who have seen the models and designs produced by these youngsters, still in their teens, have accorded them unstinted praise and admiration.

In the beautiful northern district of New York city, near Columbia College, away from the din and clatter of the central metropolis, may be found a school which has set aside a class for the designing and building of model motor boats. This is the seventh grade of the Horace Mann School. And, though the class was formed only two and a half years ago, a number of worthy models have already been turned out by the students.

The credit for the formation of the class belongs to Mr. Howard Brundage, a graduate of Columbia University. Believing that the study and making of small motor boats would prove a good mechanical test for the boys of the school, and enable them at the same time to acquire a valuable knowledge of boat construction, he suggested and instituted the boat building class. Of course, this addition to the course of study was, at first, intended only for those students who were especially interested in mechanics; but, needless to say, a small army of future citizens joined the class.

[illegible] FOR TWO.

[Journal of American Medical Association.]

A new device which will appeal to all users of microscopes is the arrangement of two separate oculars with one common objective, allowing two persons side by side to look at the same field, so that an instructor may describe to a pupil what should be observed by the latter while both are looking at it; so, also, that an artist can make a drawing under the direction of the microscopist, etc. Appreciation of its value will doubtless be expressed by all users, and the question will be asked why it was not invented before. Thus far we have heard only of the instrument's being exhibited in France, but in due time it will probably be introduced into this country.

THE NEW AEROPLANE GUN.

Weapons of the Twining Type Have Proved Highly Successful in Practice.

That the United States now has a gun capable of destroying any aeroplane known today or likely to be invented in the near future is the belief of the officials of the Navy Department. It is the one-pounder designed by Rear Admiral Nathan C. Twining, chief of the bureau of ordnance, which has undergone its first tests at the naval proving ground at Indian Head within the past few days. The department is planning to have more of them made at the Washington navy yard without delay.

The Twining gun is of the type ordinarily found in the secondary batteries of battleships. The invention by which invading aeroplanes are to be vanquished, is the remarkable carriage device, which by means of hydraulic cylinders and powerful springs takes up all of the combined recoil of shot and gravity, allowing the steel braces to escape the shock. The gun can be placed on wheels, as well as on board ship. Experts have been seeking the gun carriage that could make the added recoil of a gun fired at a 90-degree angle, and Rear Admiral Twining has solved the problem.

"It is now possible," said Rear Admiral Twining in discussing the tests, "to build guns that can easily carry a distance of two miles. They will be the 3-inch guns of modern service, equipped with shells that would wreck any aeroplane they struck.

"These guns, firing at a height of more than 10,000 feet, could reach the aeroplane that established the world's altitude record. They could drive aeroplanes to an impossible height and prevent them from doing damage to ships below by reason of their inability to aim bombs from above.

"It is an established fact that at a height of 4,000 feet the aeronaut cannot accurately gauge distance. The one-pound gun would have no difficulty, so far as range is concerned, in bringing down an aeroplane from this height. Larger guns will go still higher.

SCALP ITCHED TERRIBLY

"One evening while combing my hair, I noticed a few brown crustlike spots on my scalp and, of course, I thought it was only a little dust that had settled there during the week. So I washed my hair thoroughly but I saw that they wouldn't come out. Then at the end of the next week I washed my hair again, and to my astonishment I saw not only those few but many more had come. Then my head became worse and worse, and my scalp started to itch terribly, so that I could not sleep nor keep from scratching my head.

"The crustlike pieces later opened and made sores which bled, and they also itched something terrible. I tried many remedies but none helped and instead they made my head worse. This condition of my scalp kept up for a month, and then one day I met a friend and she advised me to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment which I did. In two weeks I was rid completely of this trouble, through the use of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I am never without them, for they are my most highly valued friends." (Signed) Miss Alva Gustafson, 677 Second Ave., New York City, May 17, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on the skin and hair, will be sent, post-free, on application to "Cuticura," Dept. K K, Boston.

A COOL SEPTEMBER DINNER.

Sweetbread, Ox Tongue, Chicken and Beefsteak Are Appetizing Cooked in Casseroles.

[Cornelia C. Bedford.]

Menu

Clear Tomato Soup.
Steamed Fish Egg Sauce
Buttered Potato Blocks
Roast Lamb Peas Boiled Rice
Lettuce French Dressing
Cheese Crusts
Coffee Jelly Whipped Cream

The quantities here given are sufficient for six persons. For the soup put over the fire one can of tomatoes, a half pint of water, one small onion cut fine, a sprig of parsley, a scant teaspoonful of salt, a dozen peppercorns. Simmer together until the tomato is very soft, then press through a sieve and return to the fire. Blend one tablespoonful of corn starch with a little cold water, add to the soup when boiling and stir until smoothly thickened and clear. Taste to see that the seasoning is sufficient, then draw to one side and simmer for 10 minutes. Cut two crustless slices of stale bread in half-inch dice and saute in a very little butter until golden brown. These may be prepared in advance, then heated in the oven when needed. Serve with the soup.

One quart of raw potatoes cut into blocks or dice will be needed. Boil in slightly salted water until tender but unbroken—about 12 minutes. Drain and return to the side of the fire. Add, a little at a time, four tablespoonfuls of melted butter, turning them gently that the butter may be equally distributed and absorbed. When in the serving dish sprinkle with a very little finely chopped parsley.

One cupful and a quarter of raw rice will be needed. Pick it over and wash thoroughly until the water runs away clear. Have ready a kettle containing four or five quarts of water. Add a heaping teaspoonful of salt and the rice. Cover a moment until the water boils again, then gradually uncover. Keep at a galloping boil so that the rice grains will not stick together. Test occasionally, rubbing a few grains between thumb and fingers. When done the rice will be tender to the centre, this takes from 12 to 20 minutes according to the age and variety of rice used. As soon as done drain off all water and stand the kettle at the edge of the range where the rice will steam for about five minutes. Cover only with a cloth or it will be soggy. The rice may be simply molded, if desired, by pressing lightly into a buttered cup or warm tumbler, then turning out carefully on a heated platter.

Open one large or two small cans of green peas. Drain off all the water and rinse repeatedly in cold water, then let stand in cold water for at least an hour. This removes the taste peculiar to canned vegetables. Before re-heating drain thoroughly. Melt a large spoonful of butter in a saucepan, add a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and a half teaspoonful of sugar. Turn in the peas and heat slowly at the side of the fire, shaking and stirring every now and again. They will take about 15 minutes to heat through.

Earlier in the day separate the head of lettuce, washing the leaves thoroughly. Wrap in a wet cloth and put away on ice or in a cold place until needed, then dry each leaf on a soft cloth and arrange in the salad bowl, or on plate. Make a French dressing by putting in a saucer or small bowl a half teaspoonful of salt, a quarter teaspoonful of pepper and four tablespoonfuls of olive oil. Stir until the seasonings are softened, then gradually drop in one tablespoonful of vinegar, either plain or tarragon. Stir continually and rapidly until the mixture is emulsified then use at once as it will soon separate if allowed to stand. This dressing is often mixed at the table.

Use stale bread for the cheese crusts, cutting in thin slices, then into any shapes desired. Spread with a little butter, sprinkle thickly with grated cheese and dust lightly with pepper. Place on a pan in a moderate oven until the cheese melts. Serve either hot or cold.

Soak a half package of granulated gelatine in a half cupful of cold water. When soft pour over it two cupfuls and a half of rather weak but clear coffee, or use half water and half strong drip coffee. Sweeten with two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, stirring until dissolved, then strain. Add a teaspoonful of vanilla and pour into one large or six individual molds. Set on ice until firm, then turn out. To one cupful and a half of heavy cream add two tablespoonfuls of sifted powdered sugar and 10 drops of vanilla and whip to a solid froth. Serve this with the jelly.

Sweetbreads en Marmite—One large sweetbread, two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, four ounces of cooked ham or tongue, one cupful of brown or Espagnole sauce, half a teaspoonful of finely chopped shallot, one large truffle, salt, pepper, half a lemon. Trim the sweetbread and lay it in cold salted water with a little lemon juice for one hour. Put it, with this water, into a saucepan and parboil it for 15 minutes. Lift out the sweetbread and lay it in cold water to become firm for 10 or 15 minutes. Take it out of the water, dry and cut it into large dice; also the ham or tongue. Melt the butter in a pan, add the sweetbread and shallot and fry gently until tender. Meantime heat the truffle, cut in thin slices, in a little stock. Season the sweetbread carefully and put the mixture into small marmite pots, allowing one for each guest. Lay a slice of truffle on the top of the mixture in each.

Ox Tongue en Casserole—One fresh ox tongue, two carrots, two onions, one turnip, a bunch of parsley, thyme, marjoram, three cloves, six allspice, stock or water, salt and pepper. Wash and trim the tongue carefully, roll it round in the same way as you would ribs of beef and keep it in shape with a piece of tape. Wash and prepare the vegetables, cut each in half. Lay them in the casserole with the spice. Next put in the tongue, then the rest of the vegetables and pour enough stock or water to half cover the tongue. Put the lid on the casserole and let the contents simmer gently for four hours. The tongue should be turned once during the cooking. Then either serve the tongue hot, with the stock thickened, carefully seasoned and flavored with ketchup, or serve it cold, garnished with fresh parsley.

Chicken Pot Pie—One large chicken, three quarters of a pound of ham, three pounds of potatoes, half a pound of onions (Spanish, if possible), three quarters of a pint of stock or water, one heaping tablespoonful of butter, salt and pepper. Have a good-sized casserole. Wash, peel and parboil the potatoes for 10 minutes in salted water, then cut them in rounds about three quarters of an inch thick. Peel and cut the onions in rings. Cut the ham in large squares and the

THE WEST AND THE EAST.

[Henry Mann, in Columbian Magazine.]

It has been said by more than one writer qualified to speak with knowledge that the West cannot understand the East, that Europe and America can never grasp the ideals and methods of the Orient. Indeed, this is the view generally accepted by Americans regarding the workings of the Oriental mind, and the designs which the Mongol nations are supposed to have hidden behind the facial mask. Hence, American doubt of the designs of Japan, notwithstanding profuse protestations of amity on the part of the Japanese. Anything new that may throw light on the subject is welcomed with eager interest, and the observant traveler returning from a visit to Japan is quite sure of a corner in his local paper, especially if he is in a position to talk as he feels, free from the polite subterfuges and tactful lies of diplomacy.

Park Commissioner Thomas B. Lockwood, of Buffalo, is the latest to say something of interest, upon returning from a tour which included several weeks in Japan. It is gratifying to learn that, in Mr. Lockwood's opinion, Japan is not getting ready to attack the United States, but "is getting ready for something," he adds, in the Buffalo News. Japan, Commissioner Lockwood declares, is hoarding gold, in preparation for a struggle of some kind and although the empire is on a gold basis, gold coin is at a premium over paper supposed to be exchangeable for gold. "Japan," he continues, "has also a tremendous army. You don't see it in the cities, where foreign tourists might see them. It is buried in the country and the manoeuvres are never advertised as public spectacles. The entire Liao Tung peninsula and Manchuria, north of the Amur river, are filled with veteran Japanese troops. They are held subject to an order any day to take the field for the empire of Nippon."

Mr. Lockwood gives the reasons why, from his viewpoint, Japan is not likely for the present, or for some time to come, to seek a quarrel with the United States. He then proceeds to offer the interesting suggestion that Japan's designs are really on China, that China is verging on revolution and that, when the eruption comes, Japan will be prepared to take foremost part in deciding China's fate. "For this she is maintaining a standing army and reserves that are called out for annual manoeuvres, totaling 1,250,000 troops. She is maintaining this force on less than we are paying for the annual maintenance of our standing army of less than 100,000."

It is significant that Professor Joseph King Goodrich, who has occupied the English chair in the Imperial Government College at Kyoto, Japan, and who has been in Japan the best part of 25 years, has arrived at practically the same conclusion as Mr. Lockwood—that Japan has "a deep-laid scheme against China's integrity."

Professor Goodrich adds, in the Denver Post: "This persistent nagging of the United States that has gone on now for five years or more has always puzzled me, and I do not see clearly what it means. Can it be a cunning device to divert the attention of the world from Japan's evil intentions toward China? This may be; because if there is one thing plain to me, it is that Japan has designs in that direction which bode ill for China and nothing good for the rest of us."

Altogether, it appears to be a reasonable inference from the statements of the gentlemen from whom we have quoted that Japan has no present intent to provoke a war with the United States, which is a good thing for us—and a very, very, very good thing for Japan.

SPOTS ON LINEN.

[Washington Star.]

When your table linen or fine doilies become stained or spotted with anything that will not easily wash out, be sure to remove the spot before sending the linen to the laundry.

Berry and fruit stains can be removed very easily by holding the cloth tightly over the top of a bowl and pouring boiling water very slowly through the mark until it disappears.

Salt dampened with lemon juice laid on the spot and subjected to the hot sun will remove ink spots from linen.

One of the hardest stains to take out of fine linen is that made by the lead of an indelible pencil. Great care must be taken to clean this kind of a spot or your linen will be ruined. Under no circumstances touch water to such a spot.

Mix together four tablespoonfuls of peroxide of hydrogen and four tablespoonfuls of clear water. Lay the soiled spot on an old piece of linen folded to several thicknesses or over several thicknesses of white blotting paper, and with a clean sponge or bit of clean linen sop the spot with the mixture and lay it in the direct rays of the sun.

Repeat this process until the spot disappears and allow it to remain in the sun until it has bleached a pure white.

PERSONALS.

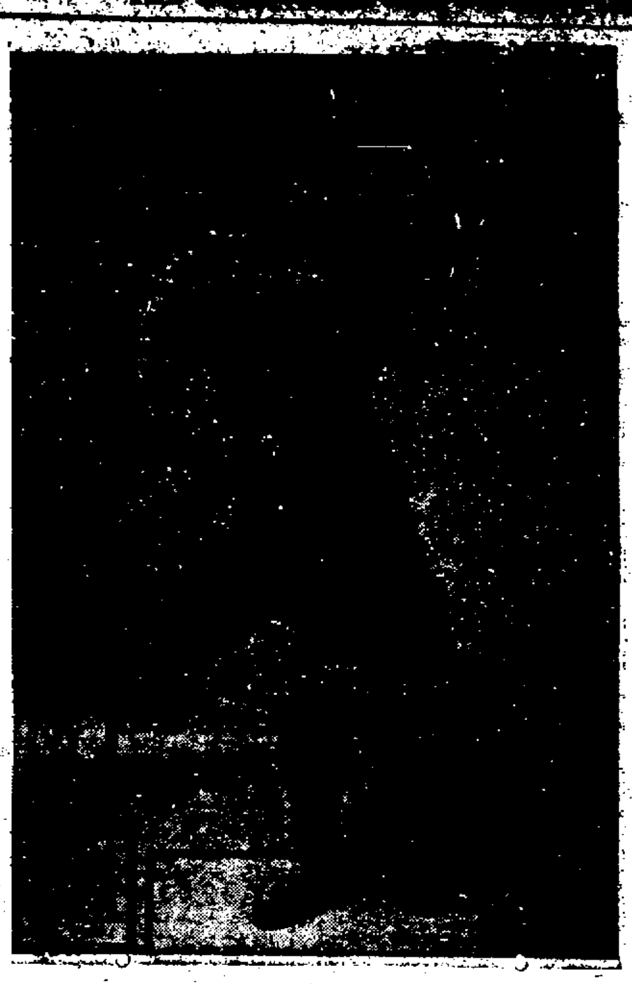

....Enrico Alfano, the alleged head of the Camorrists, and Guiseppe Minichiello, another member of the Camorra now on trial for the murder of Gennaro Cuoccolo and his wife, have been condemned to three months imprisonment for insulting Cavaliere Bianchi, president of the court.

....With no dissent-voice, Francisco I. Madero received the nomination of the Progressive party for president of Mexico, but Francisco Vasquez Gomez, his old running mate and erstwhile agent of the revolution at Washington, was grilled by partisans of three candidates for the vice presidency.

....Andrew Carnegie joined a temperance excursion picnic on the grounds of Skibo Castle recently and took an active part in the games. He is said to have displayed surprising skill and endurance, particularly when it came to skipping, and held his own with the most expert of the young persons at the picnic.

....An end was put to the story that John W. Gates feared his son, Charlie G. Gates, would imperil others who invested money on the advice of the financier when it was announced that practically all of Gates's fortune, about $38,000,000, goes to his widow and son. Mr. Gates is said to have declared almost with his last breath that he had the utmost confidence in his son.

....The contest over the will of Walter E. Duryea, who died at his home in Upper Montclair in May last, after suffering for 12 years from a broken neck, ended when attorneys for Mrs. Eva Duryea Thalborg, a sister, announced to Surrogate Graham that Mrs. Thalborg had decided to withdraw the contest. Miss Eleanor Peregrine of Upper Montclair, the nurse who faithfully took care of Duryea from the time he received his injury until his death, was the principal beneficiary under the will. She will come into possession of over $1,000,000. Miss Peregrine was sought in marriage by Duryea, but refused him. Mrs. Thalborg, who received $10,000 and a portrait of her father, Edgar D. Duryea, contested her brother's will.

RECOMPENSE.

[Helen Combes, in Boston Transcript.]

Gray days, black days,
Days that fret the soul,
Every step a backward,
None toward the goal.
When despair is striving
To pierce my armor through,
And I'm needing courage
Then—I think of you.

Hard days, long days,
When my rightful share
Of carrying the burden
Is more than I can bear,
Toil days, grind days,
Many tasks to do,
Still, at quiet even
Rest, and peace—and you.

Wet days, cold days,
When the heavens weep
And the leaden hours
Barely seem to creep
T'ward the blessed sunset
When the skies are blue
And my heart rejoices
For happiness—and you!

THE INTELLECTUAL LIFE IN JAPAN.

[North American Review.]

The position of literary men in Japan differs in many essential respects from that which is accorded writers of prominence in the Western world. The individuality of literary fame and literary personality in its various aspects have not been developed in the Orient to nearly the same extent as in the West. The great books to which men return again and again for guidance and inspiration have been written thousands of years ago, and those men who earned fame thereafter won their laurels by writing commentaries upon the classics. No merit attached to originality. Moreover, most writings were anonymous. Especially if they were original was it advisable that the author should not make his personality too prominent. While learning was always respected, authorship never had the position in Japan and other Oriental countries that it has enjoyed in the West from the Greeks down to the present.

The Japanese mind will excel in the future in many directions, but the greatest development may be expected in those activities for which racial and social experience has best prepared the intellect. A strong but selective realism in literature, delicate word-painting, the successful search for mastery over the forces of nature, a grasp of social and political relationships—these are among the things we may expect from the Japan of the future.

KOREA ANNEXED A YEAR.

The first anniversary of the annexation of Korea to Japan was generally celebrated in Seoul and throughout the peninsula. Both Koreans and Japanese took part. A lantern procession at Seoul numbered about 10,000 persons, half of whom were Koreans.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

Which is Better—Try an Experiment or Profit by a Newport Citizen's Experience.

Something new is an experiment. Must be proved to be as represented. The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit. But the endorsement of friends is. Now, supposing you had a bad back, A Lame, Weak or Aching one, Would you experiment on it? You will read of many so-called cures. Endorsed by strangers from far-away places. It's different when the endorsement comes from home. Easy to prove local testimony. Home endorsement is the proof that backs every box of Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this case:

Henry Vickers, 17 Popler St., Newport, R. I., says: "I have told many people of the benefit I have received from Doan's Kidney Pills and I do not hesitate to confirm the statement I gave for publication in their praise, three years ago. My kidneys caused me no end of trouble and I had severe pains through my loins. The kidney secretions contained sediment and were irregular in passage. I was restless at night and felt tired and languid upon arising in the morning. Hearing about Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at Wright & Hay's Drug Store and they restored me to good health."

THE NEWS IN PROVIDENCE.

TEN PAGES.

THE CONCESSIONIST'S PROFITS AND LOSSES.

The Atlantic coast section has just passed through one of those periods of weather which give concessionists at outing parks the blues. Amusement enterprises are big lotteries and men behind them not only stand to make big profits but also to lose heavily and fast. It is because the public sees these places only on pleasant days, when they have good patronage, that so many suppose the season means huge profits. A season at almost any resort comprises but five profitable weeks, and if two or three Sundays are rainy or there is a whole week of bad weather expenses eat up what promised to be profits. The experienced concessionist appreciates that he is gambling on the turn of a wheel, while the novice is staggered when he meets the unvarnished fact by experience. Newport's beach is not unlike any other outing place, in spite of the ideas which some have of the possibility of making money out of it. There has been a week's salary lost to settle this year with hardly a cent of income, as any one could see who has taken the trouble to go there during the past seven days and look over the field.

FASHIONS IN BATTLESHIPS.

Fashions in battleships change nearly as fast as styles in women's gowns and hats, and if we do not lead the naval fashions we ought at least to be prompt in catching on and not be tagging along at the tail of the procession.

The fashions are usually set, very naturally, by England, because she has a far larger navy than any other nation. She set the fashion in dreadnoughts and all other countries have plunged into that style with astonishing disregard of cost. The dreadnoughts have been followed by the super-dreadnoughts, and we shall need to speak of an extra-super-dreadnought if our own Navy Department shall build a war vessel of 35,000 or 40,000 tons displacement, say, about twice the size of the original Dreadnought.

It happens that just at the moment when our naval experts are beginning to plan for vessels twice as large as the first Dreadnought the English authorities are giving indications of a reverse movement, the laying down of smaller battleships. If the spring style in war vessels is going to be about 16,000 tons, we do not wish to be caught building vessels two or three times that size.

One argument for the smaller battle ship is the homely one about putting all our eggs into one basket. We certainly can't have as many vessels of the largest size as of a more moderate displacement. Even England, with all her dependence upon the navy, and the United States with its unlimited resources, cannot have so many ships of 30,000 as of 15,000 tons. If we have few vessels the disablement of one is a serious thing.

Another reason for the smaller vessel is that the harbors of the world will not accommodate some of those now being built. They have difficulty in passing over bars. They cannot go into dry docks for repairs, and a battleship is in almost constant need of repairs. In active service it would be a vital matter if she was obliged to go two or three thousand miles to find a dock she could enter for an overhauling. Our naval men will do well to wait a little and see how things are going before they lay down a war vessel of 40,000 tons.

RAISING THEATRE PRICES.

To an outside observer it seems like suicide for the managers of New York theatres to adopt the policy of raising the prices of admission to their houses. Already the cost of tickets to these places of amusement is almost prohibitive to all but those with unusually long purses and to put on an additional dollar would seem like deliberately driving away still more of the patronage and sending it to the lower-priced places. There might be more willingness to pay these high figures for seats if the performances witnessed were always of an order to satisfy the audiences, but this is not the case in many instances and the result is a decision on the part of many that they can obtain just as much return in the form of entertainment at those theatres which charge less. For several years it has been evident that the vaudeville and picture houses were cutting badly into the patronage of the regular theatres, because so much entertainment could be secured at these places for a comparatively small amount. This is a combination that appeals even to many who could afford to attend a place of amusement where the prices are higher if they felt that they were receiving an adequate return for their money.

It seems strange, viewing the matter thus, that the proprietors and managers of the "legitimate" theatres have not realized that the number of these vaudeville and picture houses and the excellence of the diversion which they offer in comparison with the price charged threaten the high-priced places with desertion unless they do something radical to meet this competition. It is possible that they do realize this; but if so it is singular that they should believe they can meet that competition by raising their own prices. To one outside the profession it seems as though the opposite course would be the reasonable one and what ought to be done to win better patronage and bring in more money is to lower the prices. Few believe that making the "legitimate" theatres more exclusive will render them more profitable, but the general opinion is that it will lead to the opening of more vaudeville and picture houses and less patronage for the high-priced ones.

FIREPROOF STEAMERS.

A steamer fireproof throughout is a thing to be desired in view of the horrors which have occurred on boats when they have caught fire and scores or hundreds of lives have been lost. A few years ago such a steamer would have been considered impracticable of construction, and indeed it was actually asserted not long since that it was not possible to build a boat of non-combustible material above the hull. Today, however, a steamer which is entirely fireproof is promised by the Hudson River day line, the plans having already been prepared. It is needless to say that the construction of this craft will be followed closely by builders and owners of boats and by the public as well, and if it is found to be possible to make such a vessel there will be an insistent demand on the part of the people that similar steamboats be used generally in the future. That it is possible to make a steamer fireproof does not seem unreasonable, for cars are now constructed in that manner, and the difficulties in connection with boats would not seem to be much greater.

The danger of fire on a steamer is so great as to be a constant cause of fear among some people and one which should be overcome if it is practicable to do so. That all wood can be eliminated from the construction of such craft is a new idea, but a pleasing one, and its actual accomplishment would add materially to the pleasure of travel by water and to the feeling of safety which is now far from complete in connection with steamboat traffic. The new material may add to the expense of construction, but as it will also increase the natural life of the boat by the elimination of the danger of damage by fire the expense may be made up in the end and an actual saving experienced. The main consideration, however, is the safety of the passengers and there is no question that this will be greatly increased if a steamer really fireproof throughout can be constructed as promised.

NEW YORK'S GAME SUPPERS.

A new game law went into effect in New York today. Heretofore it has been possible to evade the statute by importing from Connecticut and New Jersey, but now it is expected that no game birds or deer shot in the New York close season, even in other states, can be served in New York. To prevent a dearth of game the companies which supply hotels and restaurants have been laying in a large supply of birds which will be kept in cold storage and it is hoped last through the close season. Every bird and deer is tagged by the state forest, fish and game commission and the laws cannot be removed until an inspector visits the hotel, restaurant or club which purchases the game for service. It is said that fully 100,000 birds will be in cold storage for the autumn and winter trade. These come from all parts of the United States and from Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Russia and Switzerland, and the cost has gone well up into the thousands of dollars, but New York must have its game suppers.

Attorney General Carmody of New York says moneys on deposit in postal savings banks in that state are subject to taxation, holding that the state law which exempts sums due depositors was intended to apply only to ordinary savings banks. The Postoffice department is inclined to believe that this raises an important issue. The act establishing postal savings depositories is silent on the question of the taxation of moneys so deposited, but provides that the bonds issued in lieu of surrendered deposits "shall be exempt from all taxes or duties of the United States as well as from taxation in any form by or under state, municipal or local authority."

A New York woman suffragist, who objected to a marriage ceremony, believing that the clause which would have made her promise to obey her husband is unfair, has been married by contract under a law recently adopted in that state. The couple did not obtain a marriage license, but filed the marriage contract with the county clerk, as the law requires. The new method is cheaper, as it is not necessary to pay $1 for a marriage license and it costs nothing to file the contract.

A law making it a misdemeanor to discriminate against persons wearing a United States uniform in hotels, restaurants and amusement resorts has become effective in New York. Rhode Island started this movement for the protection of the uniforms, Congress followed with a law affecting the District of Columbia, and now various states are legislating in favor of the soldier and sailor.

Although the officials in France are confident that the negotiations with Germany relative to Morocco will lead to a satisfactory settlement, the French people are still in a state of suspense over the situation and of anxiety at the possibility of a rupture.

The Republicans of Alabama have endorsed President Taft's administration and instructed their delegates to vote for him in the next national convention. This does not, however, settle the outcome of the Presidential election.

The recent rain storm did not quite equal "the" flood. It was a record-breaker nevertheless, for this locality, with rain on seven consecutive days and a total fall of nearly seven inches. 'Twill suffice.

Though Monday is Labor day the unions of Newport will make no special recognition of the occasion. It will be a general holiday, however, with an almost universal suspension of business.

Senator La Follette does not conceal his personal feeling when he says that "almost anybody would like to be President." He can be counted upon as at least a receptive candidate.

Once more the sun!

TYPHOID IN THE ARMY.

Its Control in This Branch of the Service an Epoch-Making Achievement in Preventive Medicine.

In 1899, during the Spanish-American war, the Seventh army corps, comprising 10,759 men in camp at Jacksonville, Fla., had 2,693 cases of typhoid fever and 248 deaths from this disease from June 1 to October 1. In 1901 the maneuvre division of the army of 12,659 men in camp at San Antonio, Texas, from March 10 to July 10, had one case of typhoid and no deaths from this cause. This record is so startling as to call forth a hearty commendation from President Taft and to be characterized as "an epoch-making achievement in preventive medicine" by the Journal of the American Medical Association, which recently printed an article on "The Sanitary Record of the Manoeuvre Division," by Lieutenant Colonel J. R. Kean of the surgeon general's office.

Colonel Kean shows that this marvelous reduction and almost abolition of this dreaded filth disease is due partly to the improved arrangements for destroying filth and refuse by burning, but largely to the preventive value of typhoid vaccination. Every officer and soldier was vaccinated before going into camp. Three injections being given at 10-day intervals, Colonel Kean says that the reaction following this vaccination was mild or absent in 90 per cent of the cases and was not followed by serious results in any case. This triumph of prevention is the result of long and patient study of typhoid. The adoption of similar methods in private practice will practically abolish this disease.

TOMMY'S SOLUTION.

[Lippincott's]

"The persistency with which children see in a fable some other moral than the one which it is intended that they shall see is often distressing," remarks a Philadelphia instructor of the young. "I had recited to one little boy the story of the wolf and the lamb, and had followed it up with the remark:

"'And now you see, Tommy, that the lamb would not have been eaten by the wolf if he had been good and sensible.'

"'Yes, I understand,' said Tommy. 'If the lamb had been good and sensible, we should have had him to eat!'"

NEWPORT AND THE TOURNAMENT.

[Providence Journal.]

In discussing the defects, real and alleged, of Newport as a place for holding the national tennis tournaments, the weather will, in all fairness, have to be barred; the summer capital is not responsible for that. But are there courts enough at the Casino and are the hours of play sufficiently long? With 202 entrants, limited grounds and matches confined to a short portion of the day, the authorities would have been hard pressed to finish the present tournament within a period satisfactorily short to most of the contestants, even if the sun had shone steadily. Should the competition be put upon a strictly methodical basis, without regard to the gallery? Should play begin at an early morning hour, irrespective of the preferences of the spectators from the cottages? Those who wish to retain this blue-ribbon event of the tennis year at Newport must ask themselves whether everything practicable in the way of reform has been accomplished this year.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

Presentation to General Wilson by Providence Custom House Officials.

Republican State Central Committee to Meet Next Week—Resignation of Greystone Pastor.

General Charles A. Wilson, whose official connection with the United States government as district attorney for Rhode Island ended Thursday night, was made the recipient during the day of a mahogany clock, the gift of the officials of the custom house. The presentation was made by Collector George W. Gardiner. General Wilson was sitting in his office when a telephone message came telling him that he was wanted immediately at the office of the collector of customs. The retiring district attorney hurried to the office and upon entering the door found himself in the midst of a group composed of the heads of the custom house departments. Mr. Gardiner stepped forward and in a few words expressed the regret which the officials of his department feel at the retirement of General Wilson. They wished, he said, to give him something which from time to time might remind him of the pleasant associations which had existed for so many years. General Wilson was taken completely by surprise, but managed to respond in his usual pleasing manner. He referred to the close association which existed between himself and the department, both in the old and in the new building. He declared that, although their official relations may have come to an end, the friendships which had sprung up would remain as strong as ever. Later in the morning, General Wilson stood looking at the clock as it rested upon a table in the district attorney's office. "That clock," he said, "will occupy the place of honor in my law office, because it represents one of the pleasantest incidents in my life."

The Republican state central committee will meet next Thursday at the Warwick home of General Charles A. Wilson, at the invitation of General Wilson, who at that time will officially take over his new duties as chairman of the state central and executive committees. The new chairman intends to entertain his guests at a Rhode Island clam dinner. At the meeting the committee will fix the date of the Republican state convention and will also consider other matters which have been accumulating for several months past.

Rev. John Mason, for the past year pastor of the Greystone Primitive Methodist Church, has tendered his resignation to the quarterly conference of the church. It was accepted, to take effect at once. Mr. Mason accepted the Greystone pastorate a little more than a year ago, leaving Pascoag, where he had been pastor of the Primitive Methodist Church. Previous to going to Pascoag he was pastor of a church in Brooklyn, and was at one time pastor of the Ruggles Street Primitive Methodist Church in Providence. Since going to Greystone Mr. Mason has taken an active interest in the affairs of the community and has been especially zealous in the endeavor to secure a school building for the Greystone children, in order that they may not be compelled to go to Centredale to attend school.

The vacancy at the Cumberland high school caused by the resignation of Louis L. Whitney has been filled by the appointment of W. Lewis Roberts, A. B., of Bristol, N. H., to the position. At the last meeting of the school committee the matter of filling the vacancy was referred to the executive of the school, Dr. James A. Cullen, and Superintendent of Schools Winslow. Since that time these officials have heard from 11 applicants for the place, five of whom, including Mr. Roberts, graduated from Brown University. Mr. Roberts graduated in the class of 1903, and the following year was principal of the Canaan, N. H., high school, resigning from that position to accept the supervision of the mathematics department at the Niagara Falls, N. Y., high school, a position which he held three years. He afterward attended the Harvard Law School and after passing a satisfactory examination was admitted to the Massachusetts bar. He has been highly recommended as an educator and by his former teachers at Brown. He is 33 years of age, married, and has one child. He will assume his new duties at the commencement of the next term.

George C. Arnold of Providence has his collection of coins on exhibition at the Art Institute at Chicago, under the auspices of the American Numismatic Association now being held in that city. The newspapers of Chicago make special reference to Mr. Arnold's collection, speaking of the great variety shown, including coins of gold, silver, platinum, nickel, copper and aluminum. In the list are two $50 gold pieces, octagon, and a very rare $4 American gold piece. The total value of the coins shown exceeds $1,000,000, and includes every coinage issue of the United States from 1793 to the present year. Among the exhibits are two silver dollars of 1804, valued at $3,600 each.

Carl Clark and William Yates, two South Providence young members of the Rhode Island Canoe Club, started from Providence this morning in a 16-foot canoe for a coastwise trip, with New York as the intended destination. They expect to negotiate the distance in their fragile craft in four days, barring the unexpected. They intend to work their way from the canoe clubhouse along the coast to Point Judith, around the Point, and then up the Sound to the metropolis. Both young men have the reputation of being good swimmers, but they expect no call upon this prowess, for the canoe is equipped with a patent device supposed to prevent its tipping over. The young mariners carry provisions and a camping outfit in waterproof bags, and intend to camp on shore nights.

Samuel L. Pendergrass, one of the oldest residents of Central Falls, observed his ninety-second birthday Thursday. Although no formalities figured in the celebration, Mr. Pendergrass received the congratulations of neighbors and friends, many of them leaving other tokens of their friendship. It is doubtful if any other person can be found in the city who has had a greater experience in Central Falls than "Uncle Sam," as he has been known by young and old for the past half-century and over. He was born in Holbrook, and while yet in his teens served his apprenticeship as a shoemaker. He made his home in Central Falls 71 years ago, and went into the boot and shoe business, soon acquiring a reputation as an expert in the business of making boots. Mr. Pendergrass has always been a staunch Republican, and for many years his shop was the headquarters of the men who composed the machine of that party, both before and after the division of the town. For a long period he was health officer of the town of Lincoln, and for 22 years was overseer of the poor, 16 years in the town of Lincoln and for six years after the division of the town. During the past year his wife died and that has had a marked effect on his physical condition, but he still maintains the same cheerful aspect and is always ready to greet his friends with the handshake which characterized his actions for such a long period.

The first re-union of the Shedd family of America was held in the town hall at Billerica, Mass., when J. Herbert Shedd of North Smithfield and Providence was elected President. Representatives of the family were present from all the New England and Middle states, also from Ohio, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin and Missouri. One of the houses which was visited was the Shedd tavern of olden days. The dinner assumed the form of a basket picnic.

Rev. George L. Locke, D. D., for 44 years rector of St. Michael's Church, Bristol, reached his seventy-sixth year this week, and in commemoration of that event Mr. and Mrs. Wallis E. Howe gave a dinner to 10 of the venerable rector's friends. Dr. Locke received many birthday gifts, besides a large cake, around which were 76 lighted candles.

THE WEATHER.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Forecast for Boston and vicinity—Fair, with slowly rising temperature tonight and Saturday; moderate, westerly winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The weather is clearing along the Atlantic slope this morning and is fair, with extensive areas of clear weather and sunshine in all other portions of the country. During the past 24 hours heavy rains have occurred on the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to the Carolinas. The largest amounts are as follows: Block Island, R. I., 4.14 inches; Nantucket Mass., 1.70; Providence, R. I., 1.53; New York city 1.90; Philadelphia 1.74. The coast disturbance has passed northeastward off the coast to the Maritime provinces. The pressure is slightly above the normal in the South. The temperature has risen to near the normal over the Lake region and the Great Central Plain, but has not yet changed in New England. In New York at 8 a. m. it was 60, Washington 63, Jacksonville 76, St. Louis 68, Chicago 70, St. Paul 64, Des Moines 62 Kansas City 70, Denver 64, San Francisco 52 and Portland, Oregon 60.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received by the Board of Aldermen of the City of Newport at the office of the City Clerk in the City Hall, and at no other place, until 5 o'clock P. M. Thursday, Sept. 14th, A. D. 1911, for price for the collection and disposal of the city refuse, in strict accordance with the conditions and specifications on file in the office of the City Clerk.

Each proposal must be directed to the Board of Aldermen of the City of Newport, R. I., and endorsed with the bidder's name.

Blank proposals may be obtained at the office of the City Clerk in the City Hall and no bid will be acceptable unless it is made out on one of these specially prepared forms.

No proposal can be withdrawn after having been opened by the Board.

The successful bidder shall, within two weeks of the awarding of the contract, be required to give to the City of Newport a surety bond for fifty per cent (50 per cent) of the amount of the contract price for twelve months for the faithful fulfillment of the contract.

A certified check for two hundred dollars ($200), payable to the City Treasurer of said Newport, must accompany each bid, to be considered as liquidated damages on failure to execute contract as awarded. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned immediately.

The right to accept or reject any and all bids is reserved.

TENNIS PROBLEM SOLVED.

All Comers' Saturday, Day of Rest on Sunday and Championship Monday.

Request of English Players for Postponement of International Series Not Likely to be Granted.

The problem in connection with the national lawn tennis tournament was definitely settled this morning, when it was finally decided to have the all-comers' contest between Beals C. Wright and Maurice E. McLoughlin, Saturday morning and the challenge match for the championship, in which William A. Larned, the holder, will defend the title against the winner of the all-comers', Monday. With this decision came the disposition of the day of rest between the two, Sunday intervening and obviating the need of an extra playing day and the further extension of the tournament.

The decision to hold the matches Saturday and Monday was not reached at once. As soon as possible after daybreak, when the rain had ceased to fall, the Casino people began to investigate the condition of the courts, especially that in front of the grand stand, and it was a sorry prospect which greeted them. The other courts were thoroughly soaked from the seven days' rain, and in a condition which seemed to preclude play on them for some time. The grand stand court was in better condition. It was especially constructed with Telford foundation and drains to draw off the water, and having been covered with canvas during the heavy rain showers better form, although not fit to play upon today. Every effort was made to rid its court of the superfluous water, but this availed but little.

At first it was thought a postponement until Monday would be necessary, but when the clouds broke and the sun came out bright and warm, Dr. Dwight, the executive officer of the tournament, after consultation with the Casino management, decided that the grand stand court would be in excellent condition by Saturday and so the all-comers' match was finally arranged for that day, with the challenge match for Monday.

This determination, and the fact that Sunday will afford the desired day of rest, changed the plan for the special doubles match arranged to be played between the singles events. Dr. Dwight at once communicated with Mr. Edward A. Brown, through whose efforts the Citizens' cups had been secured, and with the Casino governors, stating that the final arrangements for the tournament precluded the playing of the special matches. In his letter to Mr. Brown Dr. Dwight expressed the thanks of the association for the offer of the prizes and appreciation of the kind efforts of Mr. Brown in securing from the citizens of Newport generous subscriptions for the cups, stating that, on account of the long-continued rain, the association, much as he regretted it, would not be able to accept the offer.

Mr. Brown, through whose personal efforts the contributions had been secured, will return the money to the subscribers. He found the citizens ready to give liberally and could have obtained fully four times as much as was needed, in fact, he had received offers of subscriptions as late as this morning, several expressing themselves as glad of the opportunity to contribute towards the fund. Another year an earlier movement will be started to secure subscriptions, and in that way arrangements can be made in advance to have the Newport cups played for as a part of the tournament program.

Thursday a cable was received from George H. Newburn, secretary of the English Lawn Tennis Association, requesting a postponement for one week of the international matches at the West Side Tennis Club in New York. The request was discussed at length by Dr. Dwight, secretary of the national association; Secretary A. L. Hoskins, William A. Larned and others, and finally it was decided to send a message to Robert D. Wrenn, a member of the international committee in New York, to confer with Calhoun Cragin, chairman of the West Side Tennis Club committee, as to whether the delay could be granted. Late in the evening Dr. Dwight received information that the New York club did not favor the request for a change of dates of the international contests, as every detail has been arranged for the playing of the matches next week, according to the original program. It was suggested that the English team be advised of these facts upon its arrival and this action was endorsed by the officials here.

It is not expected that the English players—C. D. Dixon, A. E. Beamish and Arthur H. Lowe—who will arrive in New York Saturday, will insist upon a postponement when they learn the circumstances. It is quite essential that the international matches be played next week, as several of the American players are entered for the New Jersey state championship tournament the following week. The fixing of the Newport tournament matches for Saturday and Monday solves the difficulty regarding the international match, and with the championship decided Monday, or even Tuesday, if there should be another postponement, there will be at least two days before the Davis cup preliminaries in New York.

VISITS EXCHANGED.

Mayor Boyle Calls Upon Captain of German Ship Bremen, Who Returns the Courtesy.

This morning, the weather having at length reached a condition which made it possible to visit the German ship without pitching, Mayor Boyle, accompanied by City Clerk Fullerton, made an official visit to training ship Bremen, reaching the vessel at 10 o'clock. The usual formalities were observed and it was arranged to have the captain pay his official visit immediately thereafter. Captain Goette, accompanied by Lieutenant Steinbruck, paid the formal visit to the City Hall at 11 o'clock and were met by Mayor Boyle and City Clerk Fullerton. Thus the formal part of the Bremen's visit, so far as the city is concerned, is over.

THE CLEWS DINNER AND DANCE.

Mrs. Henry Clews gave a dinner Thursday evening at "The Rocks," followed by dancing. The interior of the house was attractively decorated, with American Beauty roses and the verandas were enclosed with waterproof material and decorated in trellis effect with pink roses. It had been intended to illuminate the grounds, but the rain prevented. Conrad's orchestra furnished music for dancing.

Luncheons were given by Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan and Mrs. J. Fred Pierson, Jr., and dinners by Mrs. Richard Cambrill, Mrs. James Lowell Putnam, Mrs. Pembroke Jones and Mrs. Emil S. Bruguiere.

This evening Mr. James J. Van Alen will give a dinner and Colonel and Mrs. Coffin will give a dance at Fort Adams for the officers of German cruiser Bremen.

TO ENTERTAIN SIR KNIGHTS.

Committee Arranges Itinerary for the Visit of Temple Commandery of Albany.

The committee of Washington Commandery, Knights Templar, having in charge the arrangements for the entertainment of Temple Commandery of Albany on its visit to Newport, September 19 and 20, has arranged the following itinerary:

Tuesday, September 19—4 p. m., Temple Commandery will arrive and be met at the train by a committee of Washington Commandery and escorted to the New Cliffs, which will be the visitors' headquarters during their stay in Newport.

5:30—Reception in Masonic hall to the Albany Sir Knights and ladies.

9-11—Entertainment and dancing.

11-12—Buffet.

Wednesday, September 20—10 to 11 a. m. boat ride in the harbor and bay.

12—Assemble at Colonel Biles's camp near Easton's point.

1—Rhode Island clambake.

2:30—Start for Training Station to witness drill.

4:15—Ocean drive.

6:30—Arrive at hotel.

7:30—Washington Commandery assembles for annual election and parade.

8:30—Escort visitors to the New York boat.

COLONIAL THEATRE IMPROVEMENTS.

The side walls of the auditorium of the Colonial Theatre having been repainted, the foyer is receiving like treatment. The building having been rushed in its construction, the walls were painted before they had had time to dry out, in consequence of which they stained and peeled. To make a good job the paint was all removed and fresh coats applied. The work has been and is being done without interference with the performances and hence is taking more time.

The work on the dressing rooms still progresses. The trim is now being put on and as soon as the steam pipers and plumbers are done the other part of the construction will be done and the rooms will be put into use. The section is considered to be up-to-date and about as fine and complete a set of rooms as the theatrical people find outside the best houses in the largest cities.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Miss Matilda Lee of Springfield, Mass., is at the Nason Cottage.

—The police had nothing except the cessation of the rain to report this morning.

—The yachts had their sails up, drying, in the harbor today, and yacht equipage was out for needs airing and a little sun.

—Mr. William R. Hunter will give the annual president's dinner at the Clam Bake Club Saturday evening, September 16.

—Mr. Reginald C. Vanderbilt will give a dinner at "Sandy Point Farm" to the officials and exhibitors at the Newport Horse Show next Monday evening.

—Miss Gibson of New York, Miss Lincoln of Worcester, Mrs. Rhoades of London and Mrs. Buttrick of Boston are guests of Mrs. Marsden J. Perry at "Bleak House."

—Dennis & Eldridge have rented for Mr. Abrahams, Bank heirs, store No. 4 in their building on the westerly side of Bellevue avenue to George H. Wilmarth for one year.

—There are only four destroyers now in the slips at the Torpedo Station, the others having sailed to Gardiner's Bay for drill. The fleet has had an idle week because of the weather.

—Mr. William S. Cooper, formerly of this city, is here on a visit to his sister, Mrs. J. E. Maursan, on Rhode Island avenue. Mr. Cooper has purchased a 50-acre farm in Virginia, where he is making his home.

—Registers at the Casino today include August Belmont, Jr., King Collins, J. Darrell Hibbard, Jr., Henri Martin, Robert Schwarzenbach, Frank S. Chick, Miss Gibson, Miss Lincoln, Mrs. Rhoades and Mrs. Buttrick.

—It seems almost needless to state that the band concert at Battery Park did not take place Thursday evening. It rained too hard. This was the second concert postponed this week, but good weather is expected and the Fort Band can play as well in September as it has done in August.

—Mrs. J. H. Allen and Miss Florence Allen left this afternoon for Washington, Conn., where Saturday afternoon Mr. Harold D. Allen will be married to Miss Mabel Elizabeth Seeley. Mrs. E. F. Thurston, who has been visiting in Norwich for a week, will join them at New London and accompany them to Washington.

—It looked this afternoon as though the second game between the City Hall base ball team and the Doctors would be played Saturday afternoon at the Civic League lot. The hour had not been decided, but it seemed certain that the game would take place. It will probably be the last of the season for the City Hall team.

—Two games are scheduled for the City League Saturday—Training Station vs. Fort Adams and Father Mathew vs. Galahad. The series between Fort Adams and Training Station stands 1 to 1 and each will try to win the odd game. Between the Tabs and Galahad the series stands Tabs 2, Galahad 1. It will be the final game and each will want it.

—A draft of 60 men from the Columbus, Ohio, barracks arrived at Fort Adams Thursday night for distribution among the various batteries in this district. Most of the men are recruits, but there are a few re-enlistments. They were needed, as there has been quite a loss of men of late through the expiration of enlistments.

—Mrs. George Nightingale Durfee of Fall River has issued invitations for an "at home" at her summer residence, Nannaquaket, Tiverton, Thursday afternoon, September 7. Mrs. Durfee will be assisted in receiving by Mrs. George Nightingale Durfee, Jr., of this city, Mrs. George Hazard Durfee, Mrs. Julian Huntington Durfee and Mrs. Edgar Greene Durfee.

—The meet at the Easin playground arranged for today was given up, because water sports and equatic performances were not part of the schedule. It is a question if it will be held, because Thursday afternoon there will be a general meet of the boys from from all the playgrounds at Morton Park and nothing will be done to interfere with the success of this big and closing meet of the season.

—The Montgomery, after being tied up at the Torpedo Station wharf for a week, sailed this morning for Bradford to coal. She will then go to the navy yard, Philadelphia, for an overhauling, preparatory to going to the Southern torpedo practice grounds. Last fall she went to Philadelphia but no farther south, as while there she was fitted with new boilers and given other repairs which held her at the yard all winter.

MUFFLER CASE FAILS.

Defendant Card Ordered Discharged for Lack of Evidence.

Fisherman in Boots and Flannel Shirt Acts as His Own Lawyer and Wins.

In the district court this morning Nicholas Card, a fisherman who was charged with violation of the muffler act, acted as his own lawyer and won his case. It was something of a novelty to see the tanned fisherman, in his rubber boots, flannel shirt and all, presenting his version of the law against the arguments of Mr. Levy. This case is the first brought under the new law, the object of which is to give relief to those living within hearing of the harbor, who have been annoyed by the noise made by fishermen going out in the early morning in their gasoline power boats.

City Solicitor Sullivan announced at the opening of the case that Mr. Levy was associated with him in the prosecution, representing citizens who were interested in securing the act passed by the legislature in January, 1910. Mr. Levy explained his connection with the case. He had been retained by a large number of taxpayers to draft the act which went before the General Assembly and had been asked to interest himself in the enforcement of the law.

The state had but two witnesses. Patrolman Newton testified that he had been put on the case. He saw Card at the head of Commercial wharf about 6:30 a. m. August 7 in his power boat. Card, when asked, told witness he had a muffler on his engine. Witness would not know whether he had or not, not being familiar with the relative noises made by engines equipped and not equipped with mufflers.

Mr. Card cross-examined the witness and took notes of the points.

Mr. Earl P. Mason testified as an expert, explaining the meaning and use of the muffler, which is simply a mechanical contrivance to subdue the noise of the engine. It does not eliminate the noise entirely, though it is possible to construct mufflers which will do that.

Mr. Card also asked Mr. Mason some questions in cross-examination, among them: "You sell mufflers, Mr. Mason, do you not?" Answer: "Yes." "You can't say that I make more noise than other boats you hear going through the harbor?" "I don't know of any boat that makes more noise than yours," replied Mr. Mason, addressing the court, the witness added: "I live in the harbor on my boat; that's why I have had occasion to notice Card's boat, which passes very closely by me sometimes."

The state announced that it had no other witnesses and Mr. Card thereupon asked for a dismissal of the case for lack of evidence. Mr. Levy explained that he had been unprepared to try the case today; if he had been consulted earlier he would have proceeded differently.

The court agreed with Mr. Card that there was no evidence that the boat was not equipped with a muffler; on the other hand, there was the statement of Mr. Card to Patrolman Newton that he did have a muffler.

Mr. Levy made an argument asking that the court dispose of the case in such a form as to take it before the supreme court for an interpretation of the law. Mr. Card promptly raised an objection, claiming that Mr. Levy's argument had nothing to do with the point before the court. Mr. Levy was told to finish his argument and Mr. Card offered no further objections.

The court replied to Mr. Levy, saying that this being a criminal complaint he could not find the defendant guilty for the sake of testing the law. That would be an injustice to defendant; it would keep him in jail if he should not have bail. The court discussed the intent of the act, saying incidentally that one of the main influences brought to bear was by people interested in selling a certain make of muffler.

"If the matter is to go before the supreme court the state must have a stronger case than this," said Judge Franklin in conclusion. "Defendant is discharged for lack of evidence."

In the case of state vs. Alexander Erickson, the state found itself short of its principal witness, Oscar Bendick, who has been discharged from the Newport Hospital and left town. In view of the circumstances the case was discontinued and Erickson discharged.

Thomas Hughes, arrested in Portsmouth for begging, was placed on probation and warned to keep away from that town.

State vs. Daniel Mitchell was discontinued and State vs. Hugh McGowan set for trial September 5.

In Richard Buckley vs. John O'Niel the court said he believed the plaintiff was entitled to possession. At the request of Mr. Nolan, counsel for defendant, who submitted authorities, he said he would re-consider the matter and reserve decision until September 27.

SIGNS OF THE END OF THE ARMY AND NAVY.

Carpenters are engaged in putting on the trim on the upper floors of the new Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association building. The trim comes from the factory formed and finished so that when the carpenters nail it up and do a slight amount of fitting it hardly requires a touch of the painters' gang to complete it. The auditorium is beginning to assume a ship-shape form and on the lower floor the stucco workers are patching up and their staging has been removed. The building has been glazed throughout except the big windows on the lower floor and in these the sash were fitted today, now that the decorative iron grill work is nearly all in place. In the basement the work of completion is going on and throughout the structure there are signs of the end and the time when it will be ready for the furnishings.

THE Y. M. C. A. COURSE.

Vocal and Instrumental Numbers, Lecture by Governor Glenn and Impersonations.

The entertainment committee of the Young Men's Christian Association has booked an entertainment course of four numbers of a pleasing variety.

The vocal number consists of a program of solos, mixed quartets, etc., followed by the rendering, with appropriate action, of selections from grand opera. The five artists known as the Good Fellows Singers, led by Harry J. Fellows, a tenor of wide reputation, are well equipped for their program.

The instrumental number will be rendered by the Boston Philharmonic Orchestral Quintette, led by Julin W. Crowley, and including Carl Webster, the cellist who pleased last year so highly. Clara Sexton, a well known Boston soprano, will appear with this number.

Ex-Governor Robert B. Glenn of North Carolina, who was brought into the limelight by his work as executive of that state, has been classed with John B. Gough in his platform oratory. His lecture will be on "The South, Its Problems and Future."

Miss Gertrude Canfield is a young woman of beauty and an accomplished impersonator. A portion of her program will be the presentation of a story, "The Fortune Hunter," which is arranged from Winchell Smith's comedy by the same name.

The dates for the course are November 7, December 11, January 23 and March 4. The Young Men's Christian Association conducts this annual course with no intention of making money, but for its aesthetic value especially to young people, and for that reason practically the entire income from the sale of tickets is used to obtain talent of the highest order.

Traveling Rugs,
Automobile Robes
Lounging Garments.

Navajo Art-Craft is a copyrighted title, designating the exclusive productions of Oregon City Woolen Mills. The fabrics known by this name are a distinct departure from the garish and uninteresting "Indian Robes," so long a drug on the market, because neither genuine Indian work, nor possessing artistic merits. Through Navajo Art-Craft, the bizarre and commonplace in Indian art is eliminated. A spirit of intelligent appreciation of Indian art values, employing studious methods of criticism, and selecting the refined and beautiful, found in the best Indian handiwork, accounts for the distinctive, original excellence of the designs.

These goods are guaranteed to be highly serviceable and durable. They will retain their finish and suppleness, with ordinary use, for years.

PLANS TO ESCAPE FRUSTRATED.

Instruments Taken from Prisoner at the Maine Jail Evidence of Scheme.

AUGUSTA, Maine, Sept. 1.—A steel table knife, fashioned into a two edged sawing instrument, a white metal dessert spoon, the handle of which had been filed to fit the lock which stood between them and liberty, and a bit of half-round file, about six inches in length, was the evidence taken from Thomas Nasson's cell at the county jail by the jailer, Orren Choate, that is wholesale delivery of the prisoners awaiting the action of the grand jury had been planned by the inmates of the jail here. That the plan was frustrated was due to the fact that Jailor Choate scented something unusual whenever he approached Nasson's cell and was on the alert.

Nasson, who is part Syrian and part French Canadian, is awaiting the action of the grand jury on a charge of breaking, entering and larceny at a local sporting goods store.

RUN IN AN IMPROPER MANNER.

Crew on Special Car Held Responsible for Accident at Warren, Maine.

AUGUSTA, Maine, Sept. 1.—The blame for the collision of electric cars on the Rockland, Thomaston & Camden Street Railway at Warren, August 8, in which one person was killed and six were injured, was fixed in a special report of the state board of railroad commissioners today. The commissioners found that the accident resulted from the confusing and improper manner in which the meeting order was given by Superintendent Valentine Chisholm; but that the accident, nevertheless, might have been avoided by the exercise of reasonable care and prudence on the part of those operating and controlling the movements of the special car. The special car was in charge of Conductor Fred Butler and Motorman William Stanford. They held Conductor Condon and Motorman Kallock of the regular car as blameless.

YOUNG PRINCE QUITS FLYING.

Son of Boston Banker Gives Up Aviation in Deference to His Family's Wishes.

Norman Prince, son of Frederick H. Prince of Boston, displayed his skill as an aviator, at Atlantic Tuesday, will not attempt further achievements in aviation for the present, in deference to the wishes of his family. He started for Chicago Thursday and his departure led to various reports as to his plans. His father said the young man would not take part in the present meet and would do no more flying for the present.

Young Mr. Prince, who assumed the name of George Mannon for aviation purposes has been studying aviation for some months, both at the Wright brothers' school at Atlanta and at the Burgess-Curtiss school on the aviation field at Atlantic, and was considered a promising pupil. He entered conditionally in the present meet, as he had not received a pilot's license. This matter must come before a committee of the Aero Club of America. As the committee meets once a week, it is doubtful if Mr. Prince can now secure, if he should so wish, the necessary paper in time to enter at this meet.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Gillett are at Mrs. Powell's.

—Mrs. H. A. Bentley has returned from Princeton, Mass.

—Miss Marie de Barril has completed her season and returned to New York.

—Captain Roy C. Smith, U. S. N., is here from Washington for a short stay.

—Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Berry are at Twin Mountain, N. H., until September 18.

—Miss Helen C. Robinson of Providence is visiting Miss Louise Otis Everett.

—Miss Addie C. Carr has returned from her vacation, spent in Boston and vicinity.

—Mrs. James Curtis Boynton has taken apartments at Mrs. Reamy's, Corne street.

—The condition of Mr. F. P. Gomes, who was recently operated upon, continues favorable.

—Mrs. Perry G. Case and Mr. Philip B. Case have gone to Sharon, Mass., for several weeks.

—Mr. Henry Clews has accepted an appointment as a trustee of Ohio Northern University.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Winthrop of Hamilton, Mass., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Patten.

—Mr. J. F. McKenzie, of the Hall & Lyon string of Mares, was a visitor here Thursday from Boston.

—Mrs. C. L. Hussey is visiting Rear Admiral and Mrs. Brownson at the Profile House, White Mountains.

—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Reynal have closed the Morrel cottage at Ochre Point and gone to White Plains, N. Y.

—Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Hollis H. Hunnewell at "Sandy Point Farm."

—Mrs. Robert Jeffrey and her daughter of Erie, Pa., are visiting Mrs. Jeffrey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, on Green place.

—J. J. Fay, George B. Alexander and O. Mirkin of New York, and J. Berman of Passaic, N. J. are registered at the United States Hotel.

—The most congested place in town this morning was probably the telephone exchange. "Line busy" was the most frequent answer to calls.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Earle of Fall River announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edith Browne Earle, to Dr. Edmund Waldo Pardee of this city.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Morehous of Pasadena, Cal., have been visiting, with Mrs. Benjamin Groff, her sister at Sebago Lake and were guests of Mrs. Groff's daughter, visiting points of interest in Maine.

—Mr. William A. Larned won the cup offered by the Newport Golf Club to the players in the tennis tournament for a scratch golf match. Mr. Larned's score was 82 holes, which is nearly the bogey for the links. About 20 players competed.

—First Lieutenant Otto A. Schrader, coast artillery corps, has been transferred from the One Hundred and Thirtieth to the One Hundred and Second company at Fort Adams. Second Lieutenant LeGrand B. Curtis has been transferred from the One Hundred and Second to the One Hundred and Thirtieth company, and Second Lieutenant Edward S. Harrison has been assigned to the One Hundred and Second.

—Complaint is heard against the blowing of the hoisting engine whistle at the new St. Joseph's Church, for the men to go to work and to knock off. The claim is that it is not always a simple toot and the noise troubles others and scares horses. What makes it worse is that the engine is located so near the street, partially on that portion of the sidewalk which has been enclosed for construction purposes.

TO MAKE ALASKA A TERRITORY.

Now Only a District Without Self-Government and Fruitful in Scandals.

Panama Threatens a Panic If Tariff Bills Pass—Private John Allen and Senator Williams.

[Washington correspondence of The News.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—As two territories are about to pass out of existence it is proposed to bring in another. Chairman Flood of the House committee on territories introduced a bill at the close of the session creating a legislature for Alaska and making it a full-fledged territory instead of a district. We have always alluded to Alaska as a territory, but it has never been one, never had a territorial form of government and never been allowed to have anything like a local self-government, such as has been accorded to all other territories, including Hawaii.

Owing to the many complications regarding Alaska it is doubtful if Congress will act very speedily. Just as the session closed Senator La Follette made a vigorous speech on Alaskan affairs and gave notice that when the regular session convened he intended to take up the subject of legislation for the territory and endeavor to have something done.

Chairman Penrose of the Senate finance committee said that if President Taft had not vetoed the tariff bills passed by Congress they would have precipitated a panic. There was a great deal of talk about Washington during the closing days of the session. It is possible that it will be used when further efforts are made to revise the tariff.

Missouri claims many good things transplanted from Kentucky. The brilliant Senator Vest was born in Kentucky. Missouri's first Speaker of the House of Representatives is a native of Kentucky. Now comes a Missourian who claims that Kentucky blue grass transplanted in Missouri flourishes as upon its native heath. Looking farther it may be said that if Missouri should furnish a President to the nation in the near future he will be a native of Kentucky. I have heard Virginia alluded to on post-prandial occasions as the "dam of Kentucky," when there was a desire to connect the two proud commonwealths in a felicitous manner. It may be said that "Kentucky is the dam of Missouri." Daniel Boone went from Kentucky to Missouri and was buried in that state.

Private John Allen drifted in and out of Washington a few days ago. He came in time to say a few words to Senator Williams, "John Sharp," drawled the humorist, "if we had this recall thing in Mississippi now you would not last three weeks in the Senate." Allen referred to the recent victory of Governor Vardaman, which showed the temper of the people of his state.

Although Congress has authorized and appropriated the money for a change in the House which will make it a new chamber, nothing will be done until after the next inauguration. The extra session was too long to allow the change to be made before the session in December, and it is not expected that the regular session will end soon enough to allow the work to be completed. As to what will happen then only the prize prophets can say, for there will be a national election meanwhile, and under certain circumstances there would be an extra session of the Sixty-third Congress.

Senator Smith of Michigan and Senator Bailey of Texas were tilting over the territorial admission bill, with especial reference to the initiative and referendum. Bailey asked Smith the direct question as to whether he favored the proposition.

"If I was called upon to vote as a private citizen," replied William Alden, "I would distinguish between what was radical and what was conservative. If a conservative initiative and referendum were proposed I might consent to it; if a radical one were proposed I might oppose it."

"That is the most explicit declaration I have heard on this floor," replied Bailey. "It reminds me of the story of Jimmy Jones and James K. Polk. They were rivals for office. Polk knew all about the tariff, and Jimmy knew nothing about it. Polk kept challenging Jimmy to debate the subject and finally Jimmy declared himself. He said that if the tariff was too high he was in favor of lowering it; if it was too low he was in favor of 'highering' it."

Senator Heyburn was opposing the campaign expenditure bill, and Senator Sutherland remarked: "The Senator will concede that sometimes men who are not absolutely perfect aspire to office, and sometimes money is improperly expended in the election."

"I have never known it. I have never come in contact with it in my life," declared Heyburn.

Arthur W. Dunn.

MARRIED, BUT MUST WED TO SECURE A LEGACY.

Mrs. Mae Deffney Baldwin of Milford, Conn., has received news that she is the sole heir to the $600,000 estate of her uncle, George Deffney of St. Louis, but that she must, to obtain the estate, marry George Curtis of St. Louis, to whom she was engaged 20 years ago. Mae Deffney was her uncle's favorite, but eloped when only 20 years old with John Baldwin, a milkman of St. Louis. They came to Milford, where Baldwin has been a blacksmith. The couple have five children.

Last week Mrs. Baldwin received news of her uncle's death and of his will leaving her his entire property. She sent a cousin to St. Louis to represent her. He telegraphed her that the estate would amount to $600,000, but that she must marry George Curtis to obtain it. She sees no way to fulfill the agreement. However, she will go to St. Louis to claim the estate.

A HALF-DOLLAR WORTH $2,500.

An 1853 half-dollar which was taken in payment of a fare on a Chicago street car a few years ago is said by numismatists at the American Numismatic Association convention to be the most valuable single coin in the association's exhibit at the Art Institute. The conductor of the car turned the half-dollar in at the barn. The barn man replaced it by another and sold it to Stevens & Co. for $5, who sold it to Charles Wilcox of Chicago for $100. The latter in turn sold it to De Witt Smith of Lee, Mass., for $500. Smith later refused to sell it for $2,500. It is now owned by H. C. Granberg, mine owner, of Oshkosh, Wis.

Lehigh Valley claim agents say that the recent accident at Manchester, N. Y., will cost the company $750,000.

FEELS NEED OF EXERCISE.

Professor Moore of Yale to Have Nelson as Sparring Partner.

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 1.—When Professor Elmer C. Moore leaves here in a few days, to resume his place at the head of the department of education at Yale, he will take with him as a sparring partner Charles Henry Nelson, a student of the University of California and brother of Battling Nelson, former lightweight champion. Professor Moore came to Berkeley this summer to deliver a series of lectures. Soon he felt the need of exercise and he asked for a boxer to be his sparring partner. Nelson was selected. Professor Moore will defray Nelson's tuition at Yale where the young man will work for a college degree and study medicine.

BIG ENLISTMENT IN A MONTH.

Louisville Fourth on List in Number of Recruits for the Army.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 1.—Not since the Spanish-American war, according to government officers here, have so many recruits joined the army in one month. Captain Dockery, in charge of the local recruiting station, asserted last night that the 108 enlistments here in August brought the Louisville office to fourth place for the month, next after New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco.

THEFTS OF WORKS OF ART.

Several Famous Paintings Have Shared the Recent Fate of Da Vinci's Mona Lisa.

Paris stands astounded at the disappearance of Mona Lisa; 35 years ago London was stirred by the theft of its profound wonder, Gainsborough's Duchess of Devonshire. The latter, till now most famous of all the paintings which have played a part in the romances of art by being lost or stolen, must give way in importance to Da Vinci's La Joconde, with her enigmatic —and $5,000,000—smile. These two, together with the brown-skinned Madonna of the Mexican convent, Millet's Goose Girl, the portrait of Saskia, said to be by Rembrandt, and half a dozen others, comprise the muster-roll of those who (to personify them) have been kidnapped.

That most of these paintings have been portraits of women allows at least a hearing for the sentimental plea of infatuation of those who took them. Long-haired persons have stood in tears before La Joconde in the salle carree, or have addressed poems and letters to this unresponsive lady of the Louvre. The wanderings of the lost Duchess for a quarter-century stuffed in a tin tube, however, and the generally ready sale of such plunder to any buyer, argue a devotion a bit short of infatuated attachment, and it is likely that Mona Lisa will be held, as were the others, for ransom, not for love.

The last theft of any painting of consequence was that of Millet's Shepherd and Flock from the Golden Gate Museum, in San Francisco, in March, 1910. "Impelled by his love for the beautiful," a young artist ruthlessly cut the canvas from its frame. This picture was soon restored. Millet's Goose Girl, together with a Rousseau, was stolen from Frederick L. Ames of North Easton, Mass., in 1885, and was found ten years later. The reward of $1,500 went to the useful purpose of defending the thief against a charge for a second offence in New York.

New York has had some connection with the stories of many lost paintings. The strange recovery of the Mexican Madonna—a piece of art of creditable excellence, but notable chiefly because the models had been Indians, and consequently the characters were represented as brown-skinned—was made in that city 15 years ago. After reposing for two centuries in a Mexican convent, the object of especial veneration, the canvas was reluctantly given to the Emperor Maximilian as a hostage. It disappeared, and a priest sought for it in this country and in Europe, finding it by a chance clue in a Third Avenue art shop.

The case of the Lost Duchess has been told and re-told too often to bear a lengthy repetition, but her romance is not apt soon to be equalled in all its points of interest. Suddenly vanishing from Christie's rooms while it was the talk of London town, the painting lay hid for a quarter century in the keeping of Adam Wirth, a noted bank robber. No profitable disposition could be made of the booty, and it was not until Wirth found himself almost penniless, in 1891, that the lost Duchess was returned to the Agnews, upon payment of $5,000. Sheedy, the gambler, was go-between in the transaction. The canvas is now in the possession of J. Pierpont Morgan.

Among the several other art thefts of importance was that of Rubens's Visitation, which, it was believed, had been burned in a fire in Antwerp Cathedral, and which came to light again only in the nineties; and that of the miracle-working Madonna which was taken by a Russian peasant and his wife from Kazan cathedral, and after the frame had been despoiled of the precious jewels was burned. Van Dyke's Descent from the Cross vanished from the Cathedral of Courtrai in 1907, but was eventually recovered.

The world came near losing one of its most valuable art treasures when a fanatic slashed, only recently, Rembrandt's Night Watch, but the damages were repaired without serious injury. The Mona Lisa's complete disappearance is the greatest loss of all. However, if half the ingenuity that has been spent in the attempt to fathom La Joconde's smile is expended upon the problem of her recovery, art lovers will not long have cause to sorrow over her absence.

TYPHOID BROUGHT FROM CAMPS AND RESORTS.

In seven weeks and four days' time 1,125 cases of typhoid fever have been reported to the health department from all boroughs of New York, as against 828 during the same period in 1910, or an increase of 297 cases. For the seven weeks in 1911 there were 112 deaths, as against 86 for the same period last year.

An official of the department who is keeping close watch on the typhoid situation says there is no doubt that many of the cases have been brought to the city from camps and other resort centres. "Many vacationists," he says "have come back earlier this year because of unpleasant weather conditions. Cases contracted at the unsanitary camps and summer resorts are beginning to increase perceptibly. Taken in connection with the outbreak that has been prevalent here for some weeks past there is nothing in the situation that need cause worry. The increase is not one to warrant alarm."

Two New Comets, One Coming at the Rate of Eleven Miles a Second.

[Professor Eric Doolittle, University of Pennsylvania]

The evening sky is now filled with the beautiful autumn constellations. The wonderful summer branch of the Milky Way forms a golden arch which passes from the south to the north, exactly through the highest point of the heavens, while Hercules, the Driver, and the delicate Northern Crown cover the sky in the west. As the striking summer group of stars known as the Scorpion sinks in the southwest the beautiful reddish royal star, Fomalhaut, emerges from the ground in the east. The slowly turning sphere has again brought the great Andromeda, with its wonderful nebula, high up in the heavens. The faint group known as the Ram has again appeared in the east, but not until next month will the Bull, the first of the bright winter groups, enter the evening sky.

But the most striking features of the heavens during this month are doubtless the return of the wonderful ringed planet, Saturn, and the unexpected appearance of two interesting comets, which have drawn near us from the depths of space.

Two of the strange visitors known as comets have recently swept in toward our sun, and both of them, as they steadily journey along in their paths, are still quite near our earth. By comparing figures 3 and 4 the reader will readily see that though these two comets happened to draw near our sun and so to become visible in our skies at the same time, they have really no connection with each other. They come from widely different portions of space, and after swinging around our sun will draw away from us in almost exactly opposite directions.

The first of these comets to be discovered was a most interesting one, both on account of its very rapid motion over the sky and because of its unusual brightness. In fact, when it first appeared in the morning sky it was so bright that it was found independently by several observers, each of whom was credited with its discovery in the newspapers. It now appears that it was first seen on a photograhpic plate taken at the Lick Observatory in California on the morning of July 6 by the astronomer C. C. Kiess, and the comet will therefore hereafter be known by his name.

The closed curve of figure 3 represents the path of the earth about the sun, while the large open curve shows the path pursued by the comet. The visitor swept in toward our system along the path XA and passing above the plane of the earth's orbit reached the point A, which was its nearest approach to the sun, June 30. At this time the sun and the comet were nearly 84,000,000 miles apart. It will be noticed that while near the highest part of its path the comet was moving almost directly toward the earth, and this was probably the origin of a report that we were to suffer a collision from this visitor, an event which, in any case, when we consider the enormous distances that lie between our earth and even the other nearby worlds of our solar system, is almost infinitely unlikely to occur.

From figure 3 it is evident that as seen from the earth the comet must have appeared to move rapidly downward and toward the right over the sky from the time of its first discovery. The path which it apparently pursued among the stars while it remained in the northern heavens is shown in figure 2. Even early in August it could be seen with a pair of opera glasses, though with some difficulty. As it and the earth drew nearer together it grew brighter until it finally became visible to the naked eye. It has now unfortunately passed so far below the plane of the earth's orbit that it is shining far down among the southern constellations and will never be seen by us again.

The other comet was discovered July 21 by Dr. W. R. Brooks of Geneva, N. Y. This comet had already passed high above the plane of the earth's orbit when it was first seen, and, as is evident from figure 4, it will continually move higher in the sky and toward the right as seen from the earth during this and the following months. It will therefore remain in excellent position for observation in the early evening, with a moderately large telescope, although it will probably at no time become so bright as the comet Kiess was during August.

As will be seen from figure 4, the earth is at present overtaking and hence drawing nearer the comet. September 1 the two bodies will be but 52,000,000 miles apart, and the comet will then appear to us eight times as bright as at the time of its discovery. At no time will this comet approach so close to us as the comet Kiess did, for August 17 the latter comet was only 19,000,000 miles away from the earth. The apparent daily motion of the comet Brooks over the sky is therefore very much less than that of the comet Kiess. The path of the former comet is shown on figure 1.

Every comet is thought to be a great swarm, or cloud, composed of meteoric particles, various gases, cosmic dust and matter in a radiant condition. This cloud, drifting through space at a wonderfully great distance away from our system, began, ages ago, to feel the pull of our sun, and to drift toward that body. Had the cloud and the sun both been at rest when the motion began the comet would of course have fallen directly on to the sun. But as both were in motion, the latter with a speed of 11 miles a second, the chance of this ever happening is almost infinitely small. Instead the comet will miss our sun and swing around it, as shown in figures 3 and 4, finally receding into the depths of space, never to be seen by us again.

The beautiful planet Venus, which shone so brightly in the western sky for many months, is now just passing into the morning heavens. September 1 it sets almost exactly due west about 40 minutes after sunset, and on account of its great brightness may be detected very near the ground in the twilight glow just after sunset. In a telescope it will then be seen as a wonderfully narrow, silvery crescent. September 25 it will pass to the west of the sun and become a morning star.

The bright ... also moved just beyond the borders of our chart, but this may still be seen low in the southwest in the very early evening. It is now near the lower star of the pair of stars known as the Balances, the upper star of this pair being shown at A, figure 1. The planet is moving slowly eastward and downward, and will pass to the east of this star September 24. At this time the two bright objects will be but one half a degree apart. The decidedly greenish star with the golden Jupiter near by will form a beautiful figure in a small telescope.

The wonderfully interesting Saturn, with its remarkable rings and ten little moons, is just entering the evening sky this month, and will remain with us as perhaps the most striking and interesting object of all throughout the winter.

The planet Mars is a short distance east of Saturn, and September 1 may be seen rising half an hour after Saturn has risen at a point of the horizon a very short distance north of the point at which Saturn rose. By the end of the month this interval is increased to one hour and ten minutes by the rapid eastern motion of Mars among the stars. By midnight both of these planets are high in the eastern heavens, in excellent position for observation.

The faint, distant Uranus is moving slowly westward and southward in the constellation Sagittarius, in the position shown in figure 1.

THE ANCIENT ROMAN BATHS.

Palatial Palaces of Cleanliness a Public Institution Among the Latin People.

[London Globe.]

While scrupulous personal cleanliness was a marked characteristic of the better class Roman, the bath among the masses was not so much a mere washing place as a public institution, bound up in the traditions of the people with the Circus, the Capitoline Jove, the fires of Vesta. The baths were apart of Rome, and one visit at least to them was a part of every refined Roman's daily program. They took the place of our clubs, music halls, theatres, debating societies, and in the case of the poorer citizen bar parlors. The famous baths of Caracalla have been reconstructed for us upon the glowing canvas of Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, and from his celebrated picture we may form some slight idea of what those magnificent buildings must have been like. Even the fine libraries presented to the British public by modern philanthropists sink into insignificance as gifts when considered with the palatial baths bestowed upon the people by the Roman emperors.

These public thermae, or baths, were primarily intended for the poorer people, but they were in all probability more often resorted to by the leisure classes. In the portico of the thermae would be displayed notices of all kinds relating to games, exhibitions, sales, public holidays, and in fact everything of general interest. Comfortable seats were placed about, and throughout the day they would be occupied by loungers.

The first chamber entered, the apodyterium, was a spacious dressing room, which, while differing in every case according to the taste of the builder, was always decorated with great magnificence; and here the bathers prepared themselves for their ablutions, aided by slaves attached to the establishment. Arrayed in loose gowns or robes, they entered the tepidarium, or apartment artificially heated. Herein they remained for some considerable time, until in a state of pleasant lassitude.

This room, an important one in the elaborate process of Roman bathing, was more lavishly and richly decorated than any other. The roof was beautifully painted; supporting the massive columns were carven figures; the walls were sumptuously designed and the pavement exquisitely tessalated in white. Bathing was a veritable vice with certain Romans, and some among them, we are assured on excellent authority, would bathe six or seven times a day and remain in the tepidarium for hours together in a condition of semi-conscious lassitude.

From the tepidarium one could enter either the sudatorium (vapor bath) or the calidarium (water bath). In the former, the bather reposed in an atmosphere of spicy fragrance, while slaves massaged and scraped his body. Thence he passed to the water, sweet with fresh perfumes, and retiring by another door enjoyed a cooling shower. Returning to the tepidarium, he was anointed, if of the wealthier class, by his slaves, with rare ointments and oils of the costliest description, while soft music played in an adjoining chamber.

The imperial thermae at Rome were veritably a small town, comprising not only all the chambers for bathing but huge apartments devoted to gymnastic games, extensive libraries, lovely gardens, lecture halls, spacious theatres and schools, restaurants, tennis courts and porticoes. Many Roman citizens spent the greater part of their lives in the imperial thermae, entering directly the doors opened in the morning and remaining there until they closed at night.

But the wealthy patricians did not use the public baths, having private baths upon their own estates, which, though smaller, were immeasurably more luxurious than those used by the public. Designed by famous architects and decorated by celebrated artists, we can today form no impression of the dazzling magnificence amid which the splendid masters of the world performed their daily ablutions. Everything, from the walls and ceiling to the table upon which the bather stretched himself for anointing—to the very vessels containing the oils and smegmatics—was of the costliest and most beautiful character. The slaves attached to a patrician's bath were selected as much for their personal grace and beauty as for their dexterity. Nubians with statuesque ebony forms, Phrygians (celebrated as hairdressers) and Greek women of Cos (to this day famed for their beauty) were specially employed to arrange the toga in those flowing folds which made this garment at once so picturesque and so dignified.

A patrician's bath was the ultimate expression of voluptuous luxury and super-refinement. Those fragments of Roman baths which remain to us today afford no idea of what such a structure was like in its entirety. From the ruins at Pompeii we can form a fair idea of the general construction of the Pompeiian baths, but by the most violent exercise of the imagination we can scarcely hope to realize or appreciate the elaborate ceremony with which the daily ablution was attended. In Nero's reign, indeed, the splendor of these private thermae attained its height; and some of the exquisites of the day were so indiscreet as to outvie, in the appointments of their tepidaria, or in the beauty of their attendants, even the wonders of the Palatine. Their vessels for containing the oils and unguents were often of gold, of alabaster, of crystal, and were profusely studded with gems. Any one of them would have represented a moderate fortune in itself.

THE WASHINGTON COLUMBUS MEMORIAL.

The memorial to Christopher Columbus, which will be directly in front of the main entrance of the Union station, will be unique among the many similar works of art in Washington. With only two exceptions all the numerous statues in the public parks of the national capitol are of bronze or similar material.

The Columbus memorial will be composed entirely of pure white marble, including the heroic statue of Columbus, the two figures of ancient and modern American inhabitants, the shaft, which forms the background of the statue, the globe and two eagles which surmount the shaft, the caravel on which the statue stands and its allegorical figure head, the two lions which decorate the ends of the semicircular fountain, which provides a setting for the statue, and the superstructure of the fountain basin.

The contract for the erection of the memorial has been awarded to Robinson Co. of New York on a $70,000 bid. This will embrace the carving and erection of all the sculptural pieces of the building of the foundation and all the plumbing and drainage work. All the carving is to be done by the Piccirilli brothers of New York, under the supervision of Larado Taft, designer of the memorial, which will be dedicated next May.

chicken in convenient joints. Fill the casserole with layers of first—chicken, then ham, onion, potato and seasoning till the casserole is full. The top layer must be of potato, and let the slices overlap each other slightly. Pour in the stock; put the butter in small pieces on the potatoes; put on the lid and bake in a slow oven for three hours. For the last half hour remove the lid, so that the potatoes may brown. If necessary, add more stock if it dries up at all.

Beefsteak en Casserole—Take a large porterhouse steak two inches thick, wipe and broil for two minutes on each side. Transfer to a casserole, add one pint of Spanish sauce, one cupful of button onions which have been lightly browned in a little butter and four tablespoonfuls of Madeira. Cover and place in a moderate oven for one hour and a quarter. Add one cupful of potato balls which have been browned in deep fat and send to the table in the casserole.

Spanish Sauce—Cook together for 10 minutes two tablespoonfuls of butter, two of chopped onions, two of chopped carrot and one of chopped celery. Add two tablespoonfuls of flour and cook until a rich brown; add one pint of consomme, or rich, clear stock and stir until thick and smooth. Add one tablespoonful of chopped ham, one bay leaf, two cloves, a sprig of parsley, a blade of mace and salt and pepper to season. Simmer very slowly for two hours; add one tablespoonful of gelatine which has been soaked in one quarter of cupful of consomme until soft, simmer for 15 minutes longer, skim and strain.

PORTSMOUTH.

Not Many Present on Second Day of St. Mary's Guild Party, But a Jolly Time.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

The only social event in the town Thursday was the continuance of the St. Mary's Guild lawn party, which under the circumstances of the weather could not be a day of success. About 20 members gathered in the morning to put the rooms in order, and had a merry time and a picnic dinner. In the afternoon whist was played, Mrs. William R. Hunter furnishing the prizes. Mrs. Abner P. Anthony won a handsome "variety case," containing a pocket mirror and beauty leaves, and Mrs. William G. Albro a jewel tray. Supper was served to about 45 and a large number of young men came for the evening. Mr. Isaac Chase sold by auction what was left of the food, fruit and cake, at fair prices. Mrs. Henry Curtis proved a successful saleswoman, by a unique method disposing of a large amount of candles. The grab shoe was again in favor, because the grabs were of unusual merit and the elders by the glee of the children were led to participate in the general hilarity. About half a dozen were present from Newport and two from Providence.

An elaborate dinner was given Thursday evening in honor of Mr. Christopher Wray of Pawtucket and Mr. John Ogden of Philadelphia. The dining room was decorated with Japanese lanterns, parasols, college pennants and four tall palms. About 25 sat down. Mr. Wray acted as toastmaster after the feast, which was followed by a social and songs by four young women and violin selections by Miss Beulah Barker, accompanied by Mr. Wray. One of the features of the occasion were the tricks performed by the blue ribbon Boston terrier Bess. Mr. Jack Ogden, with his jokes and stories kept the company in a high state of glee.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Anthony have as guests Mr. and Mrs. Bowen P. Ryder, Miss Myrtle Ryder and Miss Bertha McDuff of East Providence.

Mrs. H. Halson and her daughter of New Bedford are guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Whitehead.

Mr. A. Frank Sisson of Somerville, Mass., is here for a visit to his sister, Mrs. George A. Faulkner.

Misses Alice and Katherine Burns and Miss Katherine McDermott of Fall River are spending a week in town.

At the social at Miss Lillian Duckworth's Mr. William Mullen entertained the company with several songs and Miss Lavinia Mullen gave violin selections, accompanied by Mr. Benjamin B. Barker, Jr., on the piano.

Mr. Joshua Shove Fish, who is confined to bed by sickness, is able to sit up for a short time.

Miss Rachel Peckham, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Horace Peckham, and Miss Josephine King of Boston are spending a week in Pocasset, Mass., and other towns on Cape Cod.

Mr. and Mrs. John Marsh gave a chicken dinner for 10 Thursday.

Miss Lulu Albro, who has been guest in Providence of her aunt, Mrs. Isaac Gray, has returned home.

Misses Lottie and Sadie Ford have returned from a visit of two weeks in Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bentley of Providence are spending a week in town.

Miss Julia Barrett and Miss Nan Roche of Haverhill are guests of their aunt, Mrs. Mary Barrett.

Miss Mabel Leonard of Somerset is guest of Mrs. M. O'Neil for a week.

Miss Helen M. Ayler, chief operator at the telephone exchange, is spending her vacation this week at Westport and Jamestown.

Mrs. William N. Randall of Riverside is guest of Mr. and Mrs. Perry G. Randall.

GOLD ROBBERIES FEW.

Thieves Secure Little of the Vast Amount of Mineral Wealth Sent Out from Alaska.

[Seattle Times.]

Out of about $200,000,000 of gold which has been shipped out of Alaska to the civilization of this port only about $200,000 has been in the hands of thieves, and of this amount the bulk has been restored to its proper owners. That is not a bad showing when one stops to consider the fact that the great mass of this gold travels without any particular safeguard and without any armed men sitting about it while it is in transit. It is a very good guarantee that the men of Alaska and of the Seattle water front are about as honest as the rest of the world.

Of course we have a "gold robbery" every year or so. The men who have the opportunities to put their hands upon the vast quantities of yellow metal which comes down from the north every year would not be human if some of them did not yield to temptation. And these men certainly contain some red-blooded humans in the list. But the proportion of gold which has actually passed into the possession of and been retained by thieves has been so small as to actually make the men responsible for the safe passage of the gold from the camps in the north to the assay office in Seattle almost criminally careless.

In the Eastern states when it becomes necessary to transport a large sum of money from one point to another it is escorted through the streets from the bank to the railway station by men armed with repeating rifles sitting upon the chests in which the money is securely locked. In Alaska the gold is melted into bricks by the banks in the financial centers of the mining camps. These bricks are placed in rough wooden boxes. The boxes are placed in the purser's room upon a river steamer on the Yukon. From there they are transferred to a baggage car on the railway at Whitehorse. At Skagway they are again transferred to a purser's room, and in Seattle they are loaded upon an express wagon to be transferred to the assay office.

During most of the journey from the gold fields of the Yukon to the assay office in Seattle they have had only the casual attention of one man as their guard. This man may or may not have a revolver in his pocket, and he must eat and sleep occasionally. During those times the gold is left almost entirely without a guardian.

It is a strange thing that more of it has not been stolen, and as we say, it speaks volumes for the general honesty of the people who come into contact with the great quantity of this precious metal that less than a thousandth part of the shipments of gold from Alaska to Seattle have been tampered with.

MISS AUTOMATON.

A Massachusetts Man Makes a Woman Which Can Walk, Talk, Write and Sing.

[Boston despatch to New York Tribune.]

It walks, talks, writes, sings, smiles and performs similar and dissimilar "stunts", and still it isn't human. No sleeping, eating or drinking is necessary to give it apparent life and action, yet in any except a close inspection it might pass for a mortal being. Just turn the switch or press the button, and all the wonderful motions are performed with ease, according to those who have seen it.

Friends of John W. Belcher of Newton, who have seen this mechanical wonder, are mystified, much to the gratification of its maker. That it does all these things, and does them with as much ease as is possible by mechanical means and with the assistance of hundreds of contrivances, all manipulated by electricity, is easy of belief when one talks with its builder, who does the whole trick at a distance of 40 feet.

What is it? To the knowledge of its maker it is the first automaton ever made having the form of a woman. The life-size figure stands five feet eight inches, weighs 185 pounds, is dressed in a red silk gown of the latest design, can move lips, eyes, mouth, arms, legs and fingers, and is capable of many other seemingly impossible feats.

Nearly seven years ago Mr. Belcher, who had spent about ten years in search of perpetual motion, began the construction of the figure. As time went on he found it necessary to perfect himself in practical electricity and mechanical engineering to build up the multiple parts of the body. Then, to solve the more complicated part of making the figure talk, sing, answer questions and "think" the inventor spent more hours in research. The result is that his figure reproduces any word at a distance of 40 feet in very good tones. The phonograph arrangement he calls perfection.

Other automatons there have been, but in the opinion of Mr. Belcher none has reached the perfection of his "Miss Automaton." Its building has been his hobby, taking all his spare time, even Sundays and holidays.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them with a Veil; Remove Them with the New Drug.

An eminent skin specialist recently discovered a new drug, othine—double strength, which is so uniformly successful in removing freckles and giving a clear beautiful complexion that it is sold by Hall & Lyon Co. under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first night's use will show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely. It is absolutely harmless, and cannot injure the most tender skin.

Be sure to ask Hall & Lyon Co. for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money back guarantee.

The Methods of a Wise Mother.

Cissy Neglect—"My mother buys a lot of premium soap and saves the wrappers to get me a new dress with them because she says the boiling is awfully hard on them and turns them yellow."

Eva Spickandspan—"My mother saves no wrappers. She saves the clothes by not boiling them. She uses Fels-Naptha soap."

Anty Drudge—"Well, Eva, you certainly show good training and the methods of a wise mother. Fels-Naptha soap requires no boiling to keep frocks white and looking new. And, Cissy, tell your mother it's wiser to save the clothes than save the wrappers."

A wise housekeeper would not try to get along without a sewing machine.

Why?

Because Fels-Naptha soap makes washing easy. No hot fires, no boiling, no houseful of stifling steam, no wash boiler of scalding water endangering lives and limbs.

And when the washing's done there's no yellow tinge in the clothes. The white things are snowy, the colored things are unfaded, the flannels and other woolens are unshrunk.

When you use Fels-Naptha soap the work is only about one-fourth as hard. You put the clothes in cool or lukewarm water—never hot—rub the Fels-Naptha on them, roll them and let them soak for half-an-hour. Then rub lightly, rinse and hang on the line.

Don't forget the saving to your own health and good looks, too. If you wash the Fels-Naptha way you don't have bruised knuckles, steamed face and aching back.

After you've tried it once you will never dream of going back to the old way of washing.

Follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

TO CHANGE HIS BUSINESS.

Harry O. Cooke to Leave the Armours and be Associated With the Diamond Hill Company.

Mr. Harry O. Cooke, manager for Armour in Newport for the past 10 years is to sever his connection with that corporation September 9, but will afford every assistance to the new man who is to come here. This is purely a voluntary move on the part of Mr. Cook, the company when learning that his resignation was due to conditions here having done its best to retain his services and offered to give him a position in some more important field. During his residence here he has formed associations from which he does not care to tear himself away and has become so interested in Newport as a comfortable place to reside that he concluded that he would change his business. He proposes to associate himself in the management of the Diamond Hill Company, in which he has an interest and which through the faith and persistency of Alderman Shepley has been held together through various struggles and is now making good progress.

Mr. Cooke seems to have felt that the Armour Company was not making the progress in Newport that it should, owing possibly to lack of facilities. There seems to be no immediate prospect that these will be improved and Mr. Cooke is leaving while the company has the feeling that it does not care to lose him. The building in which the company's agency is located, on Bridge and Fourth street, was the first meat depot of this kind to be established in Newport and hence is not up to modern times. A few years ago the company purchased a piece of land on Long wharf, with the intention of constructing a large cold storage plant which would more than accommodate the business, and thus it could cater to commercial cold storage demands. Before the construction of this plant was begun another was erected and possibly is meeting all the demand for such facilities. Just why the company is not developing its purchase is not stated, but the fact remains that nothing is being done on the extensive plans once announced.

Mr. Cooke has been popular with the business men with whom he has had dealings as well as with others who have made his acquaintance.

LAST DAY NETTED $65,456.91.

Total Amount of Taxes Collected $533,-111.45, Leaving a Balance of $89,-400.16 Still Out.

The tax collections Thursday figured up $65,456.91, according to the official adding machine. Tax Collector Higbee and City Treasurer Taylor stuck to business during the evening until the last check received by mail had been accounted for and the total figures of the day were ascertained.

The total amount of taxes collected up to September 1 was $633,111.45, out of a total on the books of $822,511,-81, leaving a balance of $89,400.16 to be collected. This is considered very good, as four months are left in which to bring in taxes not yet paid and it is expected that when the collector makes his annual report few will be still out.

SUMMER AGAIN; THE DELUGE OVER.

Rain Ceases About Midnight and the Sun Shines Once More.

In Seven Days More Than Six Inches Fell, Probably a Record for Newport.

At 5:10 o'clock this morning the sun came out into plain view and the long rainstorm was over. So far as the rain was concerned, it was over at midnight; in fact, before that the wind had begun to dry things up. Still, after 11 there was another shower, just to show that the rain still could fall about seven and a half days of almost continuous performance. It was the last dying effect and then came the end.

The wind still hung in the northeast this morning, but it began veering toward the west and this afternoon it is southwest and somewhat chilly, as a southwester is likely to feel. Early this morning the temperature was down to 54, but by 2 it had risen to 66. Straw hats blossomed forth, raincoats, oilskins, rubber boots, umbrellas and signs of sadness and wetness disappeared. It was surprising how fast things changed. Again it was summer; the deluge was over.

Beginning with light showers Thursday afternoon, August 24, the storm terminated in the evening of August 31, or a little more than seven days. During that time 6.34 inches of rain fell, according to the Water Works gauge. This is probably a record for Newport, at least for many years. New York had 6.52 inches in the same time and that was a record for August since 1873, when from August 13 to 22 there was a continuous storm with 6.56 inches of rain. The rain has been heavier on the coast than inland and that is why Newport had more than Providence.

The rainfall for the 12 hours Thursday from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. was 1.43 inches, and up to 6 this morning, really for all night, was .45—a total of 1.88, close to two inches, for practically 18 hours.

The ground had become saturated Thursday for the first time. Pools formed and there was an overflow which had not before been noted. The Casino tennis grounds showed this overflow to the greatest disadvantage, but it was to be seen everywhere. At the Golf Club the low lands were flooded and the water nearly entered the power house. At the polo grounds the north end of the field was flooded, the rain coming down faster than the water ran off. The grounds are so soft that it is a question if any more polo will be played.

The brooks supplying the water works ponds showed Thursday for the first time that they knew it was raining. Up to then the rain had been absorbed by the ground as fast as it fell and little went into the brooks. With the water running in and the prospect that it will continue to run in for a long time from the soaked ground, there seems to be no cause for feeling alarmed about the water supply.

Today travel resumed its activities by train, boat and ferry, automobiles once more meandered about, people came to see tennis with the hope that the grounds were fit to play, and everyone was anxious to make up for the time lost on account of the rain. Even the sun seemed glad to smile again on humanity; at least, humanity felt that it did and was glad it was there, doing business and drying things up.

AMICABLY ARRANGED.

Plan for the Boxing Exhibition to Precede the Ball Games Labor Day Accepted.

The committee of the Board of Aldermen appointed Thursday evening to consider the matter of a license for the boxing exhibition at Wellington Park Monday afternoon had arranged to have a meeting this evening with the interested parties, but apparently there will be nothing to do except report that matters have been amicably arranged. Mr. Anthony, representing one side, and President Brown of the City League met this morning with Alderman Kelly, who suggested that arrangements ought to be made so that those who wish to see the boxing and those who desire to see the ball game might be accommodated without unnecessary clashing.

It was agreed by the two representatives that this could be done by having the boxing start at 2 o'clock and go right on without unnecessary delays, and have the base ball follow. This plan will evidently suit all concerned and there will be no clashing, but each will do the best possible to have things come off on time and enable all to see what they wish to see on the afternoon of Labor day.

RECEPTION TO GRADUATING SEAMEN GUNNERS.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Shreenan and family gave a reception Thursday evening at their home on Church street to a number of the graduating class of seamen gunners. Music was rendered by several members of the party, at 12 o'clock a collation was served and afterwards there was dancing. Those present were Mate and Mrs. William McKay, the Misses Crowell, the Misses McCormick, Miss Faerber, the Misses Shreenan, Miss Nicholson, Miss Smith and Messrs. Angle, Erskine, Wertman, Cayo, Updegraff, Mason, Ham, Shreenan, Leary, Durant, Gans and Holmes. The Misses Shreenan assisted in entertaining the guests.

The table decorations were American Beauty roses and the parlor was decorated with palms and flowers, bunting and flags. An orchestra played for the dancing, Mr. Dougherty acted as prompter and Misses Crowell and McCormick rendered piano selections. A cotillion was danced during the evening, led by Mr. Leary and Miss McCormick, followed by general dancing, which included many old-fashioned dances, among them the Virginia reel.

Prominent Lawyers Attend Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—The American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology held its second meeting today, attended by many prominent lawyers and criminologists from nearly every state in the union. General discussion followed reports on insanity and criminal responsibility by Edwin R. Keedy of Illinois, and on criminal procedure by John D. Lawson of Missouri. Later in the day the delegates were guests of the city government on a harbor trip. An inspection of the penal institution at Deer island was made. Tonight there will be a reception and smoker, the members being guests of the City Club. The speakers include Attorney General Swift, Judge De Courcey and President Nathan W. MacChesney.

Expresses Good Wishes to the Ton Family Reunion Near Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Knowing former President Roosevelt's encouragement of large families, the Tons, said to be the largest family in America, invited him to address their annual reunion which was held yesterday at Blue Island, near this city. He sent his blessing in the following letter:

"If you realized the innumerable requests I receive to make speeches, you would know that it is out of the question for me to consider anything in the nature of a private invitation. All I can do is to express my cordial good wishes to the whole Ton family. I like to read of an American family of 601 living members of the type I am sure the Tons are, which 601 have been accumulated in little over a half century."

GUILTY IN SECOND DEGREE.

Verdict Against Young Bellboy for the Jackson Murder.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The jury in case of Paul Geidel, the 17-year-old bellboy charged with the murder of William Jackson, July 24, returned a verdict of murder in the second degree this morning. The jury had been locked up all night.

By this verdict Geidel escapes the electric chair, but will be sentenced for a long term in either Sing Sing or Auburn prison. Motions were deferred by Judge Crain until next Tuesday, when sentence will probably be announced. A verdict of second-degree murder provides for imprisonment from a minimum term of 20 years to a maximum sentence for life.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

Messrs. Dodge and Hirst, who left here Tuesday in launch Hobby for Philadelphia, made a good run as far as Stratford, Conn., in spite of the weather. There, however, they were obliged to lie over on account of the high seas running outside that harbor.

Arrangements have been completed for the play and concert to be given for the purpose of raising money for a new public drinking fountain, to be put up by the Improvement Society, and the attendance bids fair to pack the hall to its full capacity.

With the appearance of the sun this morning things about the island grew lively again. That only a few of the summer guests had left soon became evident. The rainy weather has caused vegetation to put on a fresh green coloring, and it is doubtful if the island ever looked so well as this time of the year.

More than 100 who failed to hear of the postponement of tennis today took the morning ferries to Newport to witness the finals, only to be disappointed.

NO ESTIMATE OF THEIR WORTH.

An Impossibility to Buy or Sell Standard Oil Stock in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—For the first time in many years it was almost impossible to buy or sell Standard Oil stock today in the New York market. No one had any idea what this stock, which yesterday sold at 634 a share, was worth. Even the venturesome traders in the curb market, who usually are ready to make a price for any man who wants to buy or sell anything, were unable to reach a basis for handling the shares of the great oil company. Standard Oil of New Jersey passed out of existence as a trust stock yesterday, in accordance with the Supreme Court decision that it must divest itself of its holdings of subsidiary companies.

Guesses as to how much Standard Oil of New Jersey, stripped of these subsidiaries, was worth a share ran all the way from $300 to $500, and as to the stock of the subsidiaries, which is to be distributed among stock holders as recorded on the company's books yesterday, no estimate could be made of its worth. Standard Oil had never issued a public report and material on which to form estimates of the kind is scanty.

An attempt was made to trade in the old shares attaching to the certificates agreements whereby the seller assigned all rights in subsidiaries to the buyer. On this basis stock was quoted at about yesterday's figures, but no business was done in the fore part of the day. For Standard Oil of New Jersey without rights on subsidiaries $300 a share was bid and the lowest offer was $450. It was all such obvious guess work that no business was done.

Four Wesleyan University Men Have a Thrilling Escape from Fire.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 1.—Four Wesleyan University men had a thrilling escape early today, when fire broke out in the main wing of the Foss house on the college campus. The men had time only to secure some of their personal effects and to jump from a second-story window to the ground, a distance of 15 feet. One of the men, Robert W. Conover of Riverside, N. J., sprained his ankle in jumping. The others in the building were Frank Streightoff of Montclair, N. J., Eli Allison Stanley, Leeds, England, and Vittoriano Felini, Celano, Italy. The fire was discovered by Henry E. Conrad Seymour, Conn., who was sleeping on the veranda and who, awakened by the fire, rushed up stairs and wakened the others and then turned in an alarm.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1, Wall Street—The market opened with Amalgamated Copper at 59, American Smelting and Refining 66¾, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe 103¼, Baltimore & Ohio 100¾, Canadian Pacific, ex. div., 228, Chesapeake & Ohio 71⅝, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul 114, Erie 23¾, Great Northern preferred 122¾, Interborough Metropolitan 14¾, Interborough Metropolitan preferred 42½, Missouri Pacific 40¼, Northern Pacific 125¾, Reading 141¾, Southern Pacific 103¾, Southern Railway 27, Union Pacific 167¾, United States Steel 69¾, Lehigh Valley 157¾.

10—Gains of a point were made by Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific and Lehigh Valley in the opening sales on the Stock Exchange today. Otherwise changes were fractional. Most of the active stocks advanced slowly. Almost the only loss recorded was a decline of ⅛ in Atchison preferred.

11—The market went off a trifle from the opening prices but not much stock was sold and the lowest level uncovered new buying orders, which sent the list to a higher range than at the outset. United States Steel, Reading and the Harriman stocks were in special demand. Standard Oil of New Jersey, in which there was no transactions in the outside market, was quoted at 400 bid and 450 asked.

Noon—Speculation took on a holiday character today, the intending three days' suspension of business confining operations largely to an evening up nature. Room shorts who did not care to keep open contracts bought the representative stocks on a rising scale and the bulls perceiving the demand pushed prices up whenever possible, so that a number of the leading issues established advances of a point or more. United States Steel made up nearly all of its dividend of 1¾, which came off the price of the stock today. The government report on cotton was awaited with interest but fluctuations in the commodity itself were narrow. The declaration of the usual quarterly dividend in Chesapeake & Ohio removed doubt on this score and induced buying, which sent up the stock to 72¾. Active selling of Toledo, St. Louis & Western Preferred depressed it two points, but a number of other usually inactive stocks of this class scored notable advances. Bonds were firm, with Wabash 4's and American Tobacco 4's showing decided strength. Money on call steady at 3% per cent. Prime mercantile paper 4½@5. Exchanges $207,973,645; balances $18,478,732.

MISS FORCE TO HAVE $5,000,000.

Liberal Provision Also to be Made for His Bride in Colonel Astor's Will.

Settlement of the Marriage Agreement Indicates That Wedding Will Not be Long Delayed.

[New York Herald.]

The money which Colonel John Jacob Astor settled upon his fiance, Miss Madeleine Force, in a marriage agreement signed at Newport last Monday, was $5,000,000, instead of $2,000,000, the sum at which Newport society had placed it. The real figure was given yesterday by a person who had opportunity to learn exactly the sum for which Miss Force signed away her dower rights.

In addition to $5,000,000, which will belong to the young woman the moment she is pronounced Mrs. Astor, a further agreement was made, providing that certain provision shall be made for Miss Force in Colonel Astor's will. Just what this provision is could not be learned yesterday, but it is understood to be a most liberal one. The will, it was said, will be drawn immediately after the wedding. As soon as the document is drawn and signed by the witnesses it will be deposited with the marriage agreement with the United States Trust Company.

Although the exact plans of Colonel Astor and Miss Force are not known, it is generally understood among the friends of both that the wedding will not be delayed long. All of the preliminaries have been arranged for there is no reason for putting the wedding off longer.

The ceremony probably will take place at Beechwood, the Astor villa at Newport, and will be very simple. Only a few of Colonel Astor's more intimate friends and the members of the Force family will attend. There will be no reception, the bride having expressed a desire to go away as soon after the ceremony as possible.

It is understood that Colonel Astor and his bride will go to Europe on board one of the regular steamships, and will remain away for about a year. The Noma will follow them across, and Colonel and Mrs. Astor will probably do considerable cruising in the Mediterranean. It was said by friends yesterday that they might pass several months in Egypt in the winter.

The understanding with reference to the marriage settlement and the will was reached last week in a conference between Lewis Cass Ledyard, representing Colonel Astor, and Henry A. Gildersleeve, one-time supreme court justice, representing the Force family. It is said that Colonel Astor before the conference instructed Mr. Ledyard to agree to any reasonable thing the Force family suggested.

What instructions the representative of the Force family received are not known. It is reported that the first figure named by Judge Gildersleeve was $5,000,000, and that Mr. Ledyard agreed at once. The matter of Colonel Astor's will then was taken up and the details arranged speedily.

Last Monday was fixed as the time for signing the papers and Miss Force and her father went to Newport on board the Noma, Colonel Astor's yacht. There the papers were signed by Colonel Astor and Miss Force. Mr. Force and a local attorney signed as witnesses. A notary was present. Immediately after the agreement was signed the party returned to the Noma and was away from Newport before it was known generally that they had been ashore.

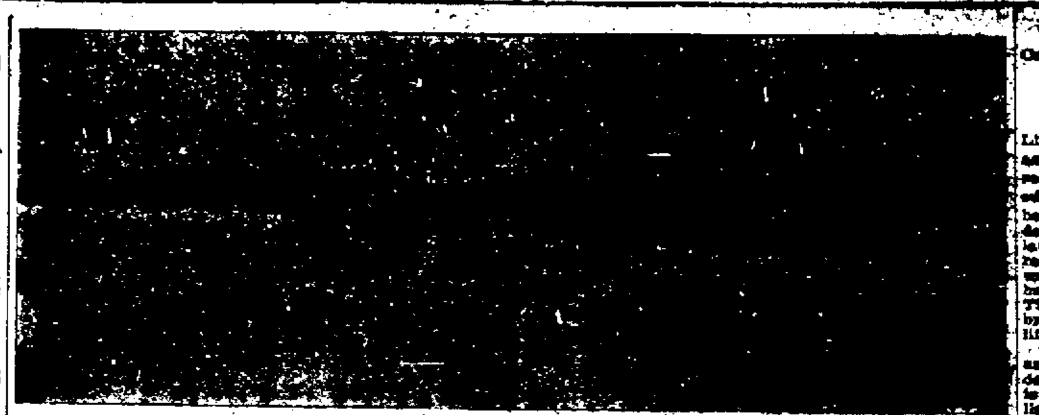

Mr. Ledyard was in New York yesterday, but declined to discuss the marriage settlement of the will. Judge Gildersleeve returned from Newport, but immediately went to his country home in New Hampshire, where he will remain until after Labor day. He was not accessible yesterday.

Colonel Astor will arrive in New York on board the Noma some time today, but will remain only a few hours. This afternoon he will proceed up the Hudson to "Rhinecliff," where he will entertain a party till after Labor day at his country home, "Ferncliff." His fiancee, her sister, Miss Katherine Force, Mrs. Force and several intimate friends of Colonel Astor and the Force family will be at "Ferncliff." Mr. Force will not go with the party. He has made two long trips on board the Noma lately, and this week probably will follow his usual custom and go to Robbin's Island, Peconic bay, for several days.

Miss Force has never been to "Ferncliff," which is one of the most beautiful estates on the Hudson. Colonel Astor's decision to spend the next few days there is said to have been in response to her request.

THE NEW FREEBODY PARK SHOW.

Some of the seats at the Freebody Park theatre had a rest Thursday evening, as the storm kept many away. Those who attended were pleased with the show, the favorite among the new entertainers seeming to be Nettie Knise, a slip of a girl who rivals Alice Shaw in whistling. She sings a song, and then whistles it; though she sings sweetly, the whistling brings her the most applause. Woods and Meadows present a singing and dancing number, Warren and Brockway entertain with a merry musical act, Adams and Schaeffer give life to the program with their character impersonations, and the Three Deidrick Brothers, men of muscle, show feats of strength and agility which surprise all present. Among the moving pictures, if a choice might be made, "A Daughter of the Revolution" and "The Hermit's Gold" would perhaps be pronounced the most interesting.

Bailey's Beach as It Looks With the Latest Improvements.

A LOCAL MOVING PICTURE.

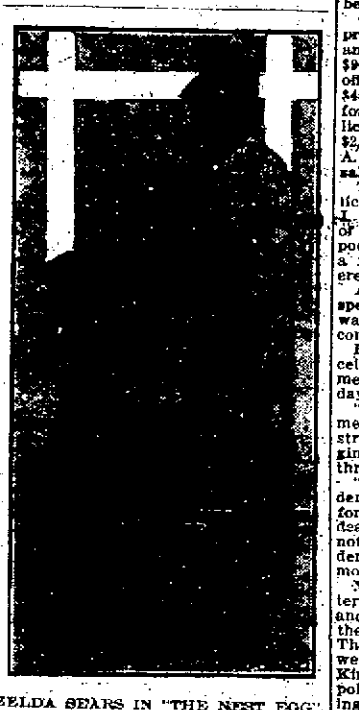

Story of a Maid and a Sailor, With Fishing Boat Angelina at the Dumplings as the Scene.

A moving picture party was here a few days ago, taking pictures of what should be a realistic scene when shown on the stage. They had an old story as the foundation and were looking for the proper local color, and considered they had found things about right when they saw the double-ender fishing craft owned by James T. O'Connell and called Angelina. She was an old seine boat, built up and equipped with a single mast placed about amidships, and with a look which takes one back to ancient shipping. That is just what was desired. The bluff at Horsehead on the Dumpling shore supplied an ideal land location for the show, and the boat and party were out several days, taking pictures of the rehearsal. These have been carried to New York for development.

The story is that of a maid and a sailor. When the maid from the top of the high bluff sees the boat with her lover returning from a long voyage she faints on the edge, falling overboard. The returning sailor sees her fall and jumping from his boat, rescues her and brings her safely on board. One can imagine that the local colorings are ideal along the Dumplings bluffs and the performance was carried out perfectly, the only drawback being the rather unsteady light, which may cause another trip to make the pictures perfect.

A COMEDY BASED ON A BAD EGG.

There are several things for which bad eggs are used, but to employ them as the principal ingredients for a comedy is an entirely new function for this material. Yet Anne Caldwell is responsible for a new piece with such a foundation, which bears the appropriate name of "The Nest Egg." Zelda Sears, the star, shoulders most of the responsibility as Hetty Gandy; while this character was well drawn by the author, Miss Sears's presentation greatly strengthened it. Her humor is delightful and she touches an occasional tender note with sincerity. The cast and production are the same which characterized the long run of this play at the Bijou Theatre, New York, and five weeks at the Chicago Opera House.

SUCCESS OF "THE NEWLYWEDS AND THEIR BABY."

Many theatre-goers will recall the great success made a few years ago by a musical comedy called "Comin' Through The Rye." Just why, no one could say. Little was known about it, yet a desire to see it seemed to become contagious. It impressed people as being good and the performance lived up to expectations.

That was several years ago. The theory of cycles in things theatrical as well as in the history of nations seems to be borne out by the success of a new candidate for box office honors bearing the title of "The Newlyweds and Their Baby." Its history parallels that of "Comin' Through The Rye". Originally produced in New York, it ran several months, was taken on the road and drew packed houses from the start. This is its first venture into New England and so far it has hit the bull's-eye. It is an entertainment novel in plot, with a line of characters new to the stage; in fact, a distinct departure from anything yet offered in the musical comedy line. It's a big company, too; more than 60 people.

City Engineer Directed to Lay Out New Road Through the King Parkway.

Bellevue Avenue Pole Matter Sent Back to Committee and Luth Damage Case Heard.

The Board of Aldermen held its weekly meeting Thursday evening and there was a sort of picking up of old ends, a ree-adjusting of things. The bad condition of Washington square under its soaking of oil was revealed.

The Park Commission seemed to have started things by its two resolutions passed Tuesday, asking why the old poles were not removed from Bellevue avenue and that the work on the King Parkway be begun. There was some talk on both these matters and the board took action, or started action, which should result in both reaching a satisfactory state. The committee on the Perry wall on Ocean avenue made a partial report, which will go to the city solicitor before being made to the full board. It looks as though this matter was at last to be disposed of.

The base ball grounds, the City League, Manager Anthony and his boxing proposition also came before the board and a committee was appointed to look into the matter. The meeting closed with the hearing on the claim of damages to William T. L. Luth because of a fall on Washington square. Mayor Boyle presided and all the members were present.

The weekly pay rolls were approved for the following sums: Streets and highways, $3,180.97; police, $964.90; fire department, $542.08; city officers, $254.27; firemen in theatres, $48. Monthly pay rolls were approved for the following: Police, $166.66; Police Relief fund, $307.98; city officers, $2,257.10; Rev. B. A. Lichter, $100; A. Kosch, $37.50; various public school salaries, $1,593.49.

The Perry Athletic Club was granted licenses for two athletic exhibitions. L. T. Gordon was granted a transfer of license from Realty hall to the Hippodrome. Samuel Hprowitz was granted a renewal of junk keeper's and gatherer's licenses.

Andrew Johnson was appointed a special policeman, being a private watchman, and the appointment was confirmed.

From the Park Commission was received the following, adopted at the meeting of the commission last Tuesday:

"Resolved, That the Board of Aldermen be respectfully requested to instruct the street commissioner to begin work at once on the new road through the King Parkway, and

"Resolved, That the Board of Aldermen be respectfully requested to inform the Park Commission why the dead poles on Bellevue avenue have not been removed, it having been understood that the poles would be removed by May 1, last."

Mayor Boyle asked about these matters and Alderman Shepley said he and Alderman Leddy had looked into the new lights on Bellevue avenue. They had not given satisfaction and were held up in consequence. Chief Kirwin stated that the only wires on poles on the avenue are those supplying the arc lights. A change in poles had been ordered and there was a delay in the matter of wiring until the pole matter was settled. The new poles did not seem to be satisfactory and there was another hold-up. If this matter was decided the Illuminating Company could at once close up its work, which it could have done two months ago had it not been for this delay. He gave some explanation about the manner of supplying the light and said that if lamps are to be suspended in the middle of the street there must be an arrangement for dropping them to trim them. The demand seemed to be for a lamp in the middle of the roadway.

It was shown that a committee had been appointed to look into this matter of the new or old style pole and to come to some decision, the committees being given power to act. Mayor Boyle suggested that if this committee would attend to business matters would be righted. The committee should look over the field, decide whether the old or new pole should stay, and order all the others off. This seemed to be the correct solution of the problem and the whole matter was referred back to the committee, to which it had been referred July 31.

In regard to the King Parkway Mr. Shepley said the Park Commission has $1,000 to spend in improving it this year, but cannot well begin until after the street commissioner has laid out the road, for which his department has $2,500. Street Commissioner Sullivan agreed that this was a correct view of the situation, and suggested that it was necessary for the city engineer to lay out the way and establish grades before he could start. It was seen that it was up to the board to take action to put the work under way and the city engineer was directed to lay out the new road through the parkway.

There was an application from the Wellington Athletic Club for a change of date for an athletic exhibition from August 31 to September 4 at 2:30 p. m.; also a remonstrance against this proposed change of date. This was in the form of a communication from President Brown of the City Base Ball League, protesting against the granting of a license for the hour named, as it would break an agreement between the League and Mr. Anthony for the use of the grounds. The league was to have the use of the grounds for the three holidays and any week-days for which it scheduled games and Mr. Anthony was to have the use on Sundays, according to the terms of the agreement as described in the remonstrance. If Mr. Anthony was granted a license for the athletic show on the afternoon of Labor day it would seriously affect the City League schedule, as the use of the grounds on that day is necessary to the League.

Mr. Gifford, manager for the Father Mathew team, was with Mr. Brown. The latter had some question about putting in the remonstrance until he knew what hour Mr. Anthony proposed to have his show. When he learned this he allowed the remonstrance to go in, as it was an hour when the park was desired for base ball games all ready arranged.

Alderman Shepley said it seemed that arrangemnets ought to be made in regard to the grounds before a license was asked for, and it was suggested that the matter be referred to a committee. It was referred to Aldermen Albro and Kelly.

An application was received from the Newport & Fall River Street Railroad Company for permission to erect three poles on Gibbs avenue, between Bliss road and Robinson street. It was laid on the table until the next regular meeting, to give any who care to protest an opportunity to be heard.

Mr. Albro reported, on the petition of Marsden J. Perry in regard to building a wall on Ocean avenue, that the committee with the street commissioner had visited the place and understood the facts, but before making a report wished to refer it to the city solicitor for his consideration. Mayor Boyle suggested that the committee could have done this without coming to the board. The report goes over until next week, to enable the city solicitor to see if the proposition made by Mr. Perry is acceptable from a legal point of view.

Next came the hearing on the damage case of W. T. L. Luth. Mr. Levy was present, representing young Luth, and the city solicitor had called in the street commissioner, to be present in view of the allegation of a defect in the roadway, but the hearing showed that the street commissioner had nothing to do with it. William T. L. Luth, his father, William T. Luth, and Herbert T. Barker gave evidence, being first questioned by Mr. Levy, then by the city solicitor, and the members of the board having opportunity to ask questions.

Briefly the facts as stated are these: Youth Luth went to the rehearsal of the Trinity Church choir on the evening of August 7. Afterward he rode down Touro street, between 9:30 and 9:45, on his bicycle, coasting as far as the Opera House and pedalling after. The lights were on at the Opera House. He was not going fast. He passed the fountain and was thrown; the first he remembered was picking himself up. His face and arm were bruised, his clothing was covered with oil and mud his bicycle was broken. He saw two blocks in the roadway where he had ridden, but had not noticed them as he came down. He went home, a boy assisting by caring for his wheel a part of the way. Dr. Stewart was called and he went to see Dr. Sweet. His arm bothered him for some time. He did not know what the cost of the bicycle repairs, the doctors' bills or other items of expense were. The boy told a straight story.

William T. Luth, father of the lad, supplemented the story by telling of the arrival of the boy at home just after 10. He fainted after coming in. His arm was hurt, his clothing was covered with mud and oil and the father fearing that there was serious injury called a doctor. He also made inquiries of the police and learned that Officer Gregory found two asphalt blocks in [illegible] ASHORE.

Captain Johnson of Barge Brazier Perishes When She Strikes on Dickens Reef.

The remaining barge in tow of tug Lizzie D., bound for Providence, went ashore on Dickens reef, near Whale Rock, Thursday, after barge Rye had sunk near Point Judith. After the barge had struck a man was seen on deck preparing to launch his dory, and later when the life saving crew reached the scene the wrecked dory was found and it was evident the man had lost his life trying to go ashore. This morning his body was picked up by the members of the Point Judith life saving crew.

He was H. Johnson and the barge ashore is the W. H. Brazier, with a deck load of wire for Providence. She is high and dry inside Whale Rock light and had the captain remained on his barge he could have been taken off in safety by the life saving crew. It is expected that the wire on the barge can be taken off unless another storm comes up.

Tug Lizzie D. left New London Thursday morning with the two barges bound for Providence. The Rye foundered just south of Point Judith and the captain was picked up by the tug, which proceeded with the other barge, which shortly afterward piled up on the rocks near Whale Rock light and the captain, the only man on board, was lost.

POSTPONEMENT OF "PYGMALION AND GALATEA."

The almost continuous downpour during the past week has made it necessary to postpone the performance of "Pygmalion and Galatea" until next week. Although the weather may be pleasant Saturday, the management considered it wise to wait a few days, until the grounds shall be quite dry, as many persons would fear the risk of sitting outdoors, even on a platform. The performance itself, of course, will profit by the delay, allowing more thorough preparation.

Miss Tanner, who is directing the dances, will return after the "Normandy Market," which is to take place at Manchester next week and is the great event of this year's season on the North Shore. Her absence as well as the fact that so many of those who have taken boxes are also box holders for the Horse Show make it expedient to set the date after that event.

CLEVER VAUDEVILLE AT THE COLONIAL.

Appreciative audiences greeted the Methven Sisters, a trio of musical young women, at The Colonial Thursday, where they presented one of the prettiest and daintiest singing acts of the season. They have good voices which blend harmoniously in little love songs, Southern melodies and novelty numbers, some of which are sung to their own accompaniment on mandolin and guitar. Special scenery of an elaborate design is used in the act. The Montforts, European acrobats, perform acts of daring and fearlessness on the horizontal bars seldom seen outside the circus arena. The tramp comedian, George B. Alexander, is a favorite and receives a warm welcome. He is the originator of many parodies and in the evening put in his latest, which so pleased the audience that he was obliged to sing many encores. The picture program is varied, as there are seven different subjects, composed of war dramas, Western dramas, comedies and scenic.

Next week's attractions, especially selected for the holiday, are White Hawk and Red Thunder, two genuine Indians in a novelty Act; Melvin and Thatcher, the home run boys, and Nagel Jones and company, in a farce comedy offering.
